Schwartzbard Set Free.
Around the World in 12 Days.
Surplus Oil and Diamonds.
Holding Up, Shaking Down.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Publishing Co.

SAMUEL SCHWARTZBARD was acquitted and set free in Paris yesterday after confessing in open court he had murdered Petlura, whose men had murdered many Jews in pogroms in the Ukraine.

The wife of a Russian priest testified confirming the statements of many others that her husband, unable to bear the screams of the unhappy pogrom victims, rushed out to help them, saw Petlura's soldiers killing them, and was himself murdered.

When Schwartzbard, who fought well in the French army, was freed, the crowd in the court shouted "Vive la Republique" and "Vive Schwartzbard." Nothing surprising about that decision or that shouting.

Another step in travel by air. German and British dirigibles, each of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, will race around the world next year.

They expect to make the trip in twelve days, with two stops for fuel. That makes the world smaller than it was, and would interest Jules Verne. The Germans, with new light Diesel engines in their dirigibles, will surprise the world.

In America, producing too much oil, we seek a way to limit waste of power and wealth. The British Empire worries about too many diamonds produced in South Africa and elsewhere. Great Britain controls the diamond market and seeks a way to prevent digging so many diamonds, to keep up prices.

As the world gets smaller and nations, empires and business units get bigger there will have to be much arbitrary regulating.

Rear Admiral Plunkett objected to high-power methods of Red Cross collecting in Brooklyn's navy yard, where employes get no more than they need to live. Thereupon Red Cross people said they would do as they chose, because President Coolidge is the head of the Red Cross.

They will learn from President Coolidge that he does not approve such talk.

The fact that the President is head of the Red Cross is all the more reason for NOT allowing government employes to be "held up" or "shaken down," in the language of the day. Those that give to the Red Cross should give because they want to. No high powered, high salaried collectors should be allowed to use the name of the President to force "donations" from underpaid government employes.

Admiral Plunkett should have his marines firmly, painlessly throw the collecting gentlemen out.

History repeats itself sadly. Your mind's eye sees a shipload of beautiful Greek youths and maidens sent to Crete to appease various appetites of the dread-

QUEEN MARIE MADE MATCH

MRS. GLORIA VANDERBILT TO WED
The widow of Reginald Vanderbilt, on her way to visit the parents of Prince Hohenlohe Langebourg in Wuertemberg, announces her engagement to the prince, whom she met on the Leviathan when he was accompanying his aunt, Queen Marie, to the United States.

Paris Oct. 27 (I.N.S.).—Another romance fostered by Queen Marie of Rumania has reached a successful climax.

Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, widow of the late Reginald Vanderbilt, today admitted her engagement to Prince Hohenlohe Langebourg.

Mrs. Vanderbilt met Prince Langebourg on the Leviathan a year ago, when he was accompanying his aunt, Queen Marie, to the United States.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is now en route to Wurtemberg, where she will visit the parents of Prince Langebourg at their castle.

CONGRESS MAY PROBE OUSTING OF MAGRUDER

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—With Secretary Wilbur ready to consider any request Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder might make for an investigation of his removal from command of the Fourth Naval District following written and spoken criticism of navy methods, a congressional inquiry loomed as well today with announcement from Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, that he planned to introduce a resolution calling for such action.

Admiral Magruder's letter to President Coolidge asking for an interview and revocation of the removal order was delivered at the White House today by Secretary Wilbur.

Secretary Wilbur made it clear that Magruder's removal was not actuated by Magruder's magazine article itself, but rather by his subsequent assertions in speeches and in official correspondence.

Declaring Magruder's removal an "outrage," Senator McKellar in a radio address delivered at Memphis said that instead of being criticized he should be thanked by the navy, by Congress and by the people of the country.

If navy officers are to be muzzled, dishonored and disgraced and allowed to say only kind words about conditions in the department, he said, it is time for Congress to "step in and remedy the matter."

Heffernan, Council Candidate, Dead

FAILS, LIKE BROTHER, JOHN J., TO RECOVER AFTER AN OPERATION

Stephen P. Heffernan, candidate for the City Council from Ward 22 to succeed his brother, the late John J. Heffernan, died today of peritonitis at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where two months ago his brother passed away from the same ailment.

John J. Heffernan, who the first of the year had been chosen president of the City Council, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital on August 25, following an operation for appendicitis.

His brother Stephen, 28 years old, whose home was at No. 4 [illegible] street, Brighton, on September 12 became a candidate for the seat in the City Council vacated by John's death.

They had been closely associated both in law practice and political work, and friends assured Stephen he was the logical candidate for the Council.

About the middle of October he was stricken with appendicitis, as his brother had been, and was in turn removed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he was operated on. As in the case of his brother also, peritonitis set in, and on Oct. 23 he was reported to be dying. His family were summoned and the last rites of the church were administered.

The next day his condition was somewhat improved and friends of the young man were hopeful that he would recover. His death occurred at 10:30 today.

Stephen Heffernan was born in Brighton and was six years younger than his brother John. He was a member of the class of 1930 of Suffolk Law School and planned on completion of his course to enter partnership with his brother.

SEIZED PLANE'S PILOT GOT $640 A TRIP TO CANADA AND BACK

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A seaplane, suspected of being engaged in smuggling diamonds over the border from Canada, was seized today by Customs lake patrolmen, according to headquarters here. One arrest was made.

This is the first seizure of an aircraft ever made along the border, Collector Harry C. Whitehill said.

The pilot of the seaplane, W. H. Wincapaw of No. 126 Butler street, Staten Island, N. Y., said the plane was owned by the Richmond Airways Company of Staten Island and that he had been hired twice to carry Leon A. Tarr, a supposedly milliner, of No. 1261 Broadway, New York, to Montreal.

Wincapaw told officers here that he had already made two trips with the supposed milliner and had received $80 a flying hour for the trip. He said it took him eight hours to make the trip.

The pilot said that he and several other aviators were making "big money" transporting New York "business men" to Montreal.

Wincapaw told the officers that he did not know whether Tarr was actually a milliner or what places he visited while in Montreal. Tarr, he added, told him he had called on "business friends" and always carried a large black bag that he watched carefully.

Customs officers said Wincapaw would be held until he pays a penalty of $100 for each trip he has made across the line without reporting.

He said he did not know he had to stop and report entrance to the United States. Engine trouble forced him to alight near Burlington, where

PROF. HART'S BOOK IS CALLED 'UN-AMERICAN'

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Four public library volumes have been stigmatized as un-American by U. S. (Sport) Herman, agent of Mayor Thompson in the administration's foray against biased books in the city's library and schools.

On recommendation of the Patriot's League, Herman looked over the texts and reported them to be objectionable.

Other more bulky books were to be turned over to members of the league for reading. Mr. Herrmann has asked that "un-American passages" be marked.

The histories which earned the disapproval of the investigator were:

"The American National History," by Albert B. Hart of Harvard.

A second volume edited by Hart and written by C. H. Van Tyne of the University of Michigan.

"The Cause of the War of Independence," by Van Tyne.

"The Story of American Democracy," by Willis M. West of the University of Minnesota.

The disposition of the "condemned" histories was in doubt in view of Mayor Thompson's denial

RUTH ELDER IN PERIL ON FLIGHT TO MADRID

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Ruth Elder, American girl aviatrix, George Haldeman, the actual pilot, and half a dozen companions in the Portuguese plane that brought them from Lisbon today, were endangered when one of the machine's three motors failed about 90 miles out of Madrid.

Miss Elder, who drove the plane part of the time, alternating with the regular pilot, said the accident to the plane was "of no importance" because of the extra motors, although without them "we would have been killed, for it would have been impossible to glide to a landing.

The American fliers were met by American Ambassador Ogden Hammond and the commanding officer of the Spanish aviation service.

After the reception Miss Elder and Captain Haldeman went to the American Embassy, where they will be guests until their departure for France.

(Ruth Elder's own story will be found on Page 14.)

NAVY DAY SPEAKERS SHOW DEFENSE NEEDS

The imperative need of the United States for a great merchant marine and a powerful navy was impressed on Bostonians today by a rear admiral of the Navy, a brigadier-general of the Army, a former government financial expert and a layman, speaking at Navy Day ceremonies on Boston Common.

With stirring phrases, these speakers took advantage of the observance of the 152d birthday of our navy and the 69th birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, ardent champion of mighty fleets, to lecture eloquently on America's present and future needs.

Thousands of men, women and children were thronging to the navy yard to witness gala exercises and thrilling exhibitions of naval activities as these speakers—Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, Brigadier-General

BOARDER KILLS BABY; CRIES ANNOYED HIM

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Accused of beating a two-year-old baby to death because its wails annoyed him, John Desmond of Brooklyn was under arrest today. Thelma Loughlin, the child's mother, was held as a material witness.

The mother learned that her baby was dead when she returned from work, she said. Its spine was broken and its chest crushed. The mother told police that Desmond, a boarder, had struck the child several times when it cried on other occasions.

1 DEAD, 2 INJURED AS AUTO CRASHES POLE

John Pretty, fifty-eight, of Concord avenue, Somerville, was killed and two other men seriously injured, when the automobile in which they were riding with four others crashed into a pole on Salem street, Malden, near Webster place, early today.

Ashley C. Hedberg of No. 76 Forest street, Melrose, was taken to the Malden Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull.

John Preston, a sailor of the U. S. S. Gen. Grant of the Coast Guard, was also taken to the hospital with the same injuries. Pretty's body was found fifty feet from where the automobile rebounded, his skull crushed in.

The other four men, who escaped with cuts and bruises, were Francis A. Naisbenden, Somerville, said to he was picked up by lake patrolmen.

Officials immediately set about to closely examine the clothing and luggage of Tary, who has been removed to a hospital suffering from pneumonia. It was then that they said a diamond smuggling plot was scented by them.

The customs department was advised early this Summer that a plane had been making trips over the line with regularity, following Lake Champlain.

Efforts have been made to locate the American base of the craft without success, but early yesterday lake patrolmen came across the plane unexpectedly.

Search has failed to reveal any contraband aboard the craft, but it was ordered seized for crossing the border without reporting and is held as a suspected carrier of contraband.

The pilot, who today was being brought here for questioning and probable arraignment, is said to have admitted making several trips to Montreal but claimed he had registered entrances to Canada in the proper manner with the royal customs.

He also asserted that he had registered entrance to the United States in New York city.

No official American customs papers could be produced by the pilot, however.

Latest Cotton Fabrics — Feature Style Show — at Copley-Plaza

SMART
This dress of washable samore lustre, a rayon and cotton fabric, is exhibited by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

PARTY FROCK
Another attractive new style was this picturesque but practical frot of batiste in a summery red design on white. It is bouffant in style with skirt banded widely at the bottom to match a large rolling color of white organdie.

FOR NOON
A smart afternoon dress can be made of Myame crepe, a soft silk and cotton fabric printed in lovely shades of tan and brown.

EVENING GOWN
This evening gown of orchid blue, a cotton and rayon fabric, is fashioned along sinuous lines sponsored by Paris. It is draped lower in back than in front and the skirt is faced with rose taffeta. A shoulder corsage blends color.

ATTRACTIVE
The fuller hemline with a skirt of fine pleats is sponsored by this frock of chiffodin, a fabric in a shimmering green.

SPORT OUTFIT
Golden yellow crocodene is used in this three-piece sport outfit which attracted much attention at the show. The trimming of the jumper is the same shade of yellow crocodene striped in pale maize.

ALSO FOR SPORTS
This frock in chanel red rayon crepe is in the two-piece effect. Contrasting bindings in black rayon crepe are worked in scallops down the front and sleeves.

NAVY DAY SPEAKERS STRESS NEED OF MERCHANT MARINE

John H. Sherburne, Eliot Wadsworth, former Assistant U. S. Secretary of the Treasury, and Attorney Alexander Whiteside, representing the Mayor—were addressing a crowd of 2,000 persons on the Common.

NEED MERCHANT MARINE.

"A large merchant marine is needed because if we have not got one our products will be discriminated against, there will be delays in our commercial activities and our commerce will suffer enormously," declared Admiral Andrews who, as commandant of the First District, acted as chairman of the meeting.

"We want to pay freight to ourselves, not to others. It is vital, moreover, that we have an adequate navy to protect this merchant marine. One of the prime reasons for a large navy is this protection of ocean commerce."

"Less than one-third of our exports and imports are carried by American ships," Attorney Whiteside asserted. "Experts declare our ships should carry at least 50 per cent. And a navy is absolutely necessary to protect our sea coast and our citizens in foreign ports, as well as our ships at sea."

TRIBUTE TO ENLISTED MEN.

A glowing tribute to the character of enlisted men of the United States Navy was paid by Rear Admiral Belknap, another speaker at the Common exercises, which were enlivened by selections by the 13th Infantry band.

"Every year about 12,000 young men return to civil life, after four years or more in a service where self-reliance and resourcefulness, practical ability in useful employment, habitual respect for law and order and general manliness are cultivated," said Admiral Belknap. "The navy is a great training school for American citizenship."

"Old Ironsides" and other vessels were centers of attraction at the Navy Yard, but there were many exhibitions of various kinds to compete with the ships for the attention of the crowds.

The Navy Yard program was one of the most spectacular in years. Early arrivals saw a thrilling exhibition of lifesaving by Coast Guards, including use of the breeches buoy, deep sea diving, demonstration of the flooding of a huge drydock, airplane stunts and a snappy parade of Marines, Bluejackets and Coast Guards.

Bands blared and a holiday atmosphere pervaded the historic yard as guides led the visitors around.

Perhaps one of the proudest of the gulding "tars" was George Selen, who became chaperone not only of the whole kindergarten class of the Prescott School but of their brothers and sisters and mothers, including several infants in carriages.

There were no guards on duty and the visitors were permitted to go everywhere. The battleship Utah was a big attraction for all, while Boy Scout troops were interested in the sail loft, rigging shops and other like places.

Cheers greeted the parading men as they swung across the yard shortly after noon. The public then thronged in to watch special Navy films until the feature event of the afternoon, the docking of the U. S. S. Shawmut, a huge mine layer, in drydock No. 3.

Athletic events were going on all afternoon, while Army and Navy planes flew overhead and City of Boston fireboats gave a spectacular display in the river. Guard mount by the Marines at 4 o'clock closed the day's events.

The British consul and Mrs. Gray were guests of honor at the Women's Republican Club headquarters, and Congress A. Platt Andrew was the chief speaker.

Another official navy observance was held at the naval ammunition depot, Hingham, which was open throughout most of the day to the public. Special exhibitions of "breaking down" and reloading shells were given, and the entire Scout, with its magazines and shell-making shops, was open for general inspection.

Drills and demonstrations by the marine guard were also held, and there was music and dancing in the depot gymnasium. Hundreds from cities and towns on the South Shore had the opportunity of inspecting its big plant.

SHIELDS HIS WIFE IN HOLDUP; GETS 5 YEARS

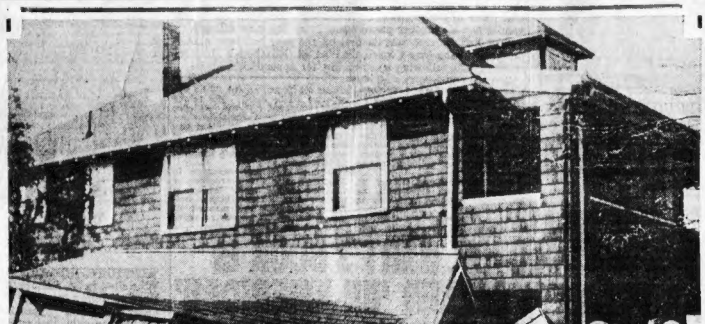

Providence, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Charged with assault with intent to rob Glendon L. Crandall, 21, was sentenced to five years in prison today, after he had expressed a wish to shoulder the whole responsibility for a holdup of which he and his wife, Marguerite, 20, were jointly accused. Mrs. Crandall was ordered held without bail and her case was continued one year for sentence.

The woman is alleged to have stood guard, pistol in hand, over a chain store manager of Pawtucket while her husband looted the cash drawer of $125.

BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $500 BY 2 MASKED MEN

Springfield, Oct. 27.—After being beaten with iron pipes and threatened with guns, James Bernabei was robbed of $500 by two masked men on Meadow street, Agawam, today. Police believe the robbers knew that earlier in the evening Bernabei went to the home of Julien Cloeno on Meadow street, to collect a debt of $500.

A couple were riding in the roadster that performed the freak action in Watertown shown in the photo. The machine swerved, crashed the windows in the front of Michael Callahan's home, No. 146 Pleasant street, then buried itself in the wall of the adjoining garage.

COTTON MEN TO STUDY TRADE PROBLEMS

Happy in the cheering assurance that the cotton industry is emerging from an era of unprofitable conditions, members of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, holding the sixty-second annual meeting of the association at the Copley-Plaza, turned today to discussion of technical problems of the industry.

The formation of a committee to make a study of the effect of humidity on employes in textile mills was urged by A. W. Thompson, an authority on the subject.

Discussing this subject from the standpoint of humanitarianism, William M. Trafton, another speaker, declared:

"Physicians and laboratorians are more and more advocating the use of humidity in buildings where people are congregated, to offset the drying of the membranes of nose and throat which, when dry, present admirable breeding places for microbes and germs.

"Humidity in the mills helps to keep the employes in better health, consequently less susceptible to colds, influenza, pneumonia, and kindred ills of the respiratory tract."

"Developing cotton manufacturing" was the subject for general discussion at the afternoon session, after which the election of officers was to take place. A motion picture, "The Romance of Rayon," was the close of the business meeting.

Escapes Death by Seizing Bridge Rail as Auto Falls

Losing control of his automobile, Dominic Palladino, 28, of Gladstone street, East Boston, had a narrow escape from death today when he leaped to safety a moment before his car plunged down a 40-foot embankment near the bridge of the Boston & Maine Railroad at Saratoga and Brement streets, East Boston.

Palladino caught hold of the bridge railing after leaping from the car. Pedestrians went to his aid and rescued him from his precarious position. He was then taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where he was treated for abrasions and contusions of the body. The machine is a total wreck, according to the police.

Three Injured in Back Bay Collision

Three men were injured today when a sedan and truck collided at Gloucester street and Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay. Charles Dwelly of Highland avenue, Roxbury, and John H. Rothwell of Lyon avenue, Everett, were taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, while Barry Rowan of Russell street, Charlestown, who was with them on the truck, was taken to City Hospital. All had multiple bruises.

Miss Estelle Bushway of Prince street, West Newton, and Oliver Boudette of Kenwood street, Cambridge, who were riding in the sedan, were shaken up.

Hit-and-Run Driver Nabbed After Chase

Following a chase through Revere, Henry L. Heraux, 26, of Salem, was arrested today by Motorcycle Officer Arthur Sweeney and Patrolman James McChristal, who charge Heraux' machine collided with the parked car of Herman Brenner of No. 18 Florence avenue, Arlington, knocking down the owner who stood beside it.

The police say Heraux disregarded Officer Sweeney's order to stop, and speeded for a mile and a half before he was caught. He was charged with drunkenness, driving under the influence of liquor, going away after an accident and operating with defective headlights.

DAD SEEKS JOB ON TRIPLETS' 1ST BIRTHDAY

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Three of a kind make a full house at No. 44 Parker street, Brockton, where Bernard, Bernadine and Bernadette Benoit celebrated their first birthday as their father sought work to feed his little flock of eight. He was laid off last week at a shoe plant.

"Yes," sighed their mother, wife of former Councilman Zenon A. Benoit, who has not times for cards, "but these are not all of a kind, for one is a boy." She has five other children under thirteen years of age and she admits that she has a full house. "But they are all well, for which we thank God," she added fervently.

The triplets celebrated their first anniversary by drinking five quarts of milk and demanding to be lifted from their three separate cribs more frequently than usual.

Bernadette lends variety to life in the household by fastening her tiny pink fingers into the bonnets or dresses of the others if they incautiously dip their heads toward her in the carriage that accommodates the trio. That's why she gets the separate seat in the carriage.

"I love them, and there isn't enough money in the whole world to buy one of their little fingers," smiled Mrs. Benoit after straightening out a third tangle of babies, with Bernadette in the fore.

"Their wants require hundreds of items daily, and I wouldn't wish a trio on any mother all at one time. No one can realize the care they are, but every mother knows what a joy it is to care for her own helpless little ones, besides, there are five others who demand a part of my time, especially Norman, who is only three now."

The past year has been filled with adversities for the Benoits, struggling to bring the triplets safely through their first year of life.

"To cap it all, my husband was laid off his job at the shoe shop indefinitely last week," the little woman said simply. "We don't know how we are going to keep on buying five quarts of milk a day for the triplets, besides the food for the others, but we believe that the world owes every man a living, and that he will soon find work."

MONK REVEALS FRAUD IN AUTO INSURANCE

Wesley E. Monk, State Insurance Commissioner, today revealed that there is "a lot of chicanery" going on, under the compulsory insurance act, in the letting for hire of automobiles insured as pleasure cars.

The expose came during a hearing given by the board of appeal, of which Commissioner Monk is a member, to Albert E. Young of Worcester on the cancellation of his policy by the Maryland Casualty Company.

Monk pointed out that in the Boston district the private livery rate for all cars is $114, whereas the insurance on the three classes of pleasure cars is bu. $29, $37 and $45.

Counsel for the insurance company claimed Young was renting his car at $5 a week to another person and should pay a higher premium.

The board found in favor of Young.

NAVY MAN HITS PLOT TO DRIVE 'U. S. OFF SEAS'

New Haven, Oct. 27 (A.Y.)—What was termed by him "insidious, aggressive campaigning by foreign shipping interests in this country to drive American shipping from the seas," was described by Captain Woodward, in command of the U. S. S. Milwaukee, addressing the Lions Club luncheon today in connection with the observance of Navy Day.

Sounding a note of warning to those who take little iterest in the development of America's sea power, he said, in part:

"The navy and the merchant marine are vital factors not only in the nation's defence but in the maintenance of her economic position among the other countries of the world.

"Foreign shipping interests are bent on making Americans dependent upon them in the realm of shipping and people are losing sight of the important relationships between the navy and merchant marine.

"We are nearing a crisis, when we must realize that to maintain a balance of power for war or peace and to maintain the latter especially, we must have a navy equal to that of any other power in the world."

Borrows Money to Pay Fine From Man Who Prosecuted Him

Borrowing $16 to pay his fine from the man who prosecuted him in court, Abraham Cohen of Highland street, Revere, today gave Chelsea Court attaches something new to talk about.

Cohen was found guilty of failing to obey the order of Building Inspector Patrick G. Murphy to repair a defective flue on a tenement owned by him in Winthrop avenue, three roof fires having occurred there.

Murphy acted as prosecuting officer. Cohen, saying he did not have any money to pay the fine, was placed in a cell. Then he sent for Murphy, asked the loan and got it.

tion, that she had ever been in the company of other men, either before or after leaving the minister; denied that he had ever found her in another man's embrace or alone with another man in a darkened room, and denied that she ever had attempted suicide.

The court spectators sat up expectantly when page 23 of Mrs. Downward's diary was offered in evidence, but their expectation died when, on objection by her counsel, Judge Chamberlain directed that the page contents be not read aloud but be copied into the record.

Mrs. Downward admitted that she held a keen dislike for her husband's mother and explained that this dislike began when the mother-in-law ransacked her daughter-in-law's room and trunk and took personal belongings.

The mother-in-law, it was also declared by Mrs. Downward, told her she had no right to marry the minister because of a religious difference.

On one occasion, according to the witness, her mother-in-law said she hoped her son would "kick" his wife out of the house and that she—the mother-in-law—would be pleased to administer the "final kick."

$230,000 PAID TO INTERESTS OF FALL

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—M. T. Everhart, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, the man who, the government contends, carried Liberty bonds to Fall after the leasing of Teapot Dome naval oil reserves to Fall's co-defendant, Harry F. Sinclair, declined to answer a number of questions in the oil trial today on the ground that it might tend to incriminate him.

Everhart, in reply to one query by Justice Siddons, declared the question at issue was asked in an attempt to connect him with a conspiracy.

EVERHART DEFIANT.

One of the questions Everhart refused to answer was whether the Tres Rios Ranch Company, largely owned by Fall, had any business transactions with Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, prior to February, 1922. Everhart tried to read a statement but the court sent the jury out of the room while Everhart explained.

The government presented testimony that $80,000 in Liberty bonds had been placed in a safety box held in the name of Fall after the leasing of Teapot Dome to Sinclair, and that huge debts of Fall's New Mexico ranch had been paid off about the same time.

IN FALL'S BANK BOX.

The $80,000 was placed with the First National Bank of Pueblo, Colo., by M. T. Everhart, Fall's brother-in-law, after a trip East. E. T. Rule, assistant cashier of the bank, testified.

Then the government presented the books of Fall's Tres Tios ranch, in which Everhart also was interested, and developed testimony that holders of $140,000 in notes had been paid off with bonds other than the $80,000 Everhart had deposited.

The journal, dated May 31, 1922, showed payments in Liberty bonds totalling $107,171.12 to note holders, including M. T. Everhart, $77,200; Mrs. J. M. Fall, $12,600; M. H. Thatcher, $10,000, and C. C. Chase, $1,680.

Rule's testimony followed a ruling by the court that Sinclair's sworn testimony before the Senate Oil Investigating Committee could not be used against him, but that voluntary statements might be offered.

The point at issue was whether Sinclair went to Fall's ranch prior to leasing the naval oil reserve from Fall for the purpose of discussing the Dome.

DR. COOK GETS HIS CASE INTO SUPREME COURT

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer, was in effect granted a review by the Supreme Court today of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals refusing to permit the Federal District Court, before which he was tried and convicted of using the mails to defraud, to release him on probation.

POLICE AUTO KILLED WOMAN, IT IS CHARGED

A charge that Miss Annie Hamilton, 66, was killed by a Lynn police car on Monday night in that city, instead of by the machine operated by Clifford Leslie, of Walnut street, now being held for manslaughter, was ordered investigated by Mayor Ralph S. Bauer today.

The charge was made by a high official of the General Electric Company who said that he was an eyewitness of the accident, and that he could produce another prominent Lynn man who also witnessed it.

Surprise was caused when the nature of the charge was made public by Mayor Bauer.

Miss Hamilton was struck down at Western avenue and Mail street, when, according to the police report, she crossed the street on an automobile go-ahead signal. Clifford Leslie, whom the police claimed was the owner and operator of the car that struck the woman, was arrested, and in district court was held in $1,000 for manslaughter.

The General Electric official, whose name Mayor Bauer withheld, declared that as a matter of fact Miss Hamilton was crossing on the red pedestrians' light

A. & P. HAMMERS HIGH PRICES

In celebration of its eighty-sixth anniversary, the A. & P. chain stores system of Greater Boston as well as in communities in 31 States of the Union, is undertaking a new drive to hammer down the high price of living. In thousands of communities during the present week, local stores are offering standard package goods at even lower prices than have prevailed heretofore, and a general invitation has been extended by the management of the great chain to the public to participate in a practical way in the anniversary celebration by taking advantage of the present drastic reductions in the price of food staples.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, originator of the chain store method of merchandising, was founded by George Huntington Hartford, who opened his first store on Vesey street, New York, in 1859. In this establishment the founder's idea took root and grew year by year. The company's activities are of world scope, with buyers in every country.

DROWNS IN BATHTUB IN FAINTING SPELL

Haverhill, Oct. 27.—The body of J. Fred Johnson, fifty-three, was found today in the bathtub in the suite he occupies at No. 1c Summer street. He is believed to have fallen into the tub and drowned when overcome by a fainting spell or other illness

Johnson, who was unmarried, shared the apartment with George Houston, editor of the Haverhill Gazette, until Houston's death last week.

TARKINGTON'S EYE IS SAVED, SAYS WIFE

Kennebunkport, Me., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—By means of a new treatment which has been very successful, Booth Tarkington, the novelist and dramatist, may have preserved for many years the sight of his left eye, Mrs. Tarkington said today, with reference to reports that he was threatened with blindness. He practically lost the sight of his right eye two years ago.

Mrs. Tarkington said he had been working right along and is able to do his work without assistance.

"There has been no furious rush of work that he might complete several works before he became totally blind as reported," she said, "but he has been enjoying the beautiful Fall weather, and his general health is as good if not better than it has been for a number of years.

"All through October he has been taking a daily dip in the ocean, near his Summer home, the 'Seawood Cottage,' here. We expect to return to our home in Indianapolis next Wednesday or Thursday."

AUTHOR PLEADS WITH JURY FOR 'SMALL FINE'

Following a dramatic plea in his own behalf by Warner M. Williams, alleged blasphemer, the case in which the youthful author is on trial in Suffolk Superior Court, went to the jury today.

"My belief is that the jury has the right to fined a defendant not guilty even if he has admitted his guilt, and all I ask is to be given a minimum fine and allowed to go on my own recognizance until the Supreme Court passes on this case," said Williams.

Arguing for the government, Assistant District Attorney Joseph A. Scolponeti declared:

"The question for the jury to determine is: 'Did the man by using the language in question create a situation in our city whereby people might grow to disregard a Redeemer?'

"It is our contention that our State constitution and that of the United States recognizes the belief in the Holy Trinity."

He called Williams a "blasphemer who really has faith but lacks the courage to admit it."

"The beliefs of the defendant are not at issue," said Judge Jones, addressing the jurors. "Every man has a right to his opinion of the origin of man and the right to discuss his opinion with other people.

"It is for the jury to take the book in which the alleged blasphemous words appeared and find out just what he meant. If he meant that the Savior would lie or steal, then so far as that part of the case goes he is guilty.

"The law says we must go to the context of the matter at issue, and the case hinges on whether Williams, the defendant, meant that Christ was in error because his teachings were contrary to those of the Jews."

LAWYER PLEADS GUILTY TO LARCENY CHARGES

George A. Sweetser, a Boston attorney with offices on State street, pleaded guilty before Judge Fosdick of the Suffolk Superior Court to two counts of an indictment containing five counts of larceny with an aggregate of $55,000. Disposition of the case was put over until January.

The two counts to which he pleaded guilty charge the theft of stocks valued at $11,000 from Carolina W. Williams and $9,000 from Irene E. Bell.

TAKES 4 OFFICERS TO HOLD INSANE WOMAN

Battling furiously, freeing herself fro mstraps that bound her, kicking and biting, and finally trying to dive headlong from an automobile carrying her to the Psychopathic Hospital, an East Boston woman today gave four Revere policemen considerable trouble. She went suddenly insane, possibly from worry, according to Dr. H. B. Friedman, Revere city physician. She is the mother of three children.

BABY IS SAVEL BY HIS FATHER'S POLICE DOG

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Ralph Mercer, two-year-old son of State Motorcycle Officer and Mrs. Boyd Mercer, was saved from drowning today by the officer's dog Trixie. The youngster fell into a deep hole in brook near the Mercer home in Nashua. Trixie sprang into the water and brought the child to safety.

Baptists for Dry Law

Springfield, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Resolutions adopted today by the Massachusetts Baptist convention placed the denomination on record as emphatically approving existing temperance laws and opposing any referendum looking toward the repeal of the 18th amendment.

IDEAL JOB! ALL HE DID WAS CASH PAY CHECK!

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Patrick J. Hogan, confidential investigator for Mayor James J Walker of New York, today told Randall J. Le Boeuf, Jr., Moreland act commissioner investigating Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp's administration of the State census, how he could not find any work to do at a census employe.

Asked by the commissioner what his employment had been prior to becoming Mayor Walker's confidential investigator, Hogan said:

"I was working on the State census, but didn't do any work."

"Your work consisted entirely in cashing your check?" the commissioner queried.

"I didn't do anything else," Hogan answered.

"Senator Walker (this was before Mr. Walker's election as mayor) said to me: 'Pat, I think I can get you a job on the State census; do you want it?' So I said, 'Sure.' Then he went downstairs to see Mrs. Knapp and fix it up."

CITE DIPLOMAT AS A SPEEDER

Washington, Oct. 27 (I.N.S.).—Charges that Count Alberto Marchetti Di Muriaglio, counsellor and charge d'affaires of the Italian embassy, drove his car past a warning policeman and through a crowd of pedestrians at a mile a minute speed and then attempted to escape in a wild drive down Georgia avenue Sunday morning, were forwarded to the State Department today by the district commissioners.

The charges against the diplomat were filed by Policeman R. N. White who alleged that the count "apparently had been drinking and in my opinion was a reckless driver, and a menace to the public safety."

RIVER DISASTER STORY WILL BE FILMED

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—Behind locked doors and with keyholes properly stuffed, a plan to film "Menace" has been created. "Menace," the idea of John Farrow, a young scenario writer at the Cecil B. De Mille studios, is a motion picture drama of what might happen if the Colorado River should suddenly decide to imitate the Mississippi and overflow its banks.

This spectacular movie, to be directed by Reginald Barker, will attempt to prevent such a catastrophe by showing just what the Boulder Dam can do to save the people living within a certain radius of the turbulent Colorado. Needless to say, this is an undertaking that will not be a matter of days, but rather the better part of a year.

Victor Varconi and Marjorie Daw will here and heroine respectively for "Menace."

THE Loew's State Theatre in Los Angeles is out for big time talent. If you don't believe me, list to this little advance information that was dropped into my attentive ear yesterday. Nora Bayes, incomparable and mighty married comedienne, and Kolb and Dill, comedians of international fame, have been engaged by Fanchon and Marco for their weekly revue.

Nora Bayes

Miss Bayes appears here in person in mid-November while Kolb and Dill will save the theatre from the pangs of a blue Christmas week by doing their stuff there December 16.

Vaudeville may win a screen actor for a few weeks, but it can never hope to hold any of our best known stars permanently. Lew Cody has had a grand time as a vaudevillian. He has played the country and been received in a manner that has delighted him. But Lew wants to come back to the movies and the movies want him.

Harry K. Brown, his business manager, has gone to New York to consult with him about the Lew Cody Company. In other words, Lew is a business man. He is going in business for himself and will make his own pictures. The release, it is whispered, may be First National.

I say Lew is a business man and I mean it. Some years ago he financed a corporation making "Quickies" and what they did in actual dollars and cents is a matter of Hollywood history.

THERE are plenty of small boys in the world who would enjoy being in F. M. Murnau's shoes. He just returned to Hollywood yesterday from a visit to the Ringling Brothers' Circus in Lynchville, Va., as the personal guest of John Ringling.

When Mr. Murnau returned from Germany he let it be known that he wanted some real circus atmosphere so that he could film "The Four Devils," a circus story with some semblance of correctness. Hence the invitation in a real circus car. Mr. Murnau begins work for the Fox Company shortly.

BEVERLY HILLS turned out en masse to watch Marion Davies take a motor ride with Orville Caldwell. In that crowd were children, grandmothers, wives, aunts, cousins, et cetera, all elbowing each other to see the movie made on Rexford Drive.

Marion Davies

Most of these people were connected by marriage at least with the movies, but they seemed just as thrilled at watching King Vidor instruct Marion and her leading man as if they had never seen a film in the making.

If you see this scene in "The Patsy," the house—the attractive low Spanish house belongs to Byrant Washburn. The film people are always willing to loan their homes to film companies and even take telephone messages for them.

ADOLPHE MENJOU has avoided an operation, but the doctors will not promise that he will be able to work for a few weeks. He is under observation and must remain on a very strict diet until he is well. That means his next picture is held in abeyance until December, but Adolphe is a good soldier and is taking his orders uncomplainingly.

Meanwhile Ernest Vadja is adding finishing touches to the next Menjou scenario. Perhaps he will write in a good part for Kathryn Carver. If so, that might help Adolphe, who admits she is his favorite leading lady.

I DON'T know whether I am gullible or not, but I do get telephone calls and letters that are amazing. Yesterday, a woman, who said she was a friend of Charlotte Bird, asked me to announce that Miss Bird has left for New York to get married.

Miss Bird, you remember, was the young woman who attempted to break into the home of Richard Dix last Spring and receive some front page publicity. Miss Bird said she was engaged to Mr. Dix at the time.

"Who is Miss Bird going to marry?" I asked, always the enterprising reporter. "I can't give you his name—only he's very rich," was the answer. These unknowns are always rich and handsome and desirable.

STIMSON IS BIG FAVORITE FOR P. I. POST

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR., Editor of Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Henry L. Stimson of New York, devoted friend and fearless champion of Gen. Leonard Wood, is still the first choice of the administration for Governor General of the Philippine islands.

Hope has not yet been abandoned here that President Coolidge will be able to prevail upon Stimson to accept the post, at least until after the presidential election next year.

From the day of General Wood's death, last August, Mr. Stimson has been agreed upon as the ideal man by those officials here who believe in the wisdom of the Philippines policy which General Wood exercised.

It was at General Wood's urgent invitation that Stimson went to the islands, and for six weeks, as the guest of the Governor-General, went from one end of the archipelago to the other, studying conditions on the ground.

Soon after his return Stimson was called to the White House to give the President the benefit of his views, and since that time he has been turned to on several occasions to advise the Administration in regard to the Philippine affairs.

Both Chief Justice Taft, who was the first Civil Governor of the Philippines and W. Cameron Forbes, Governor during the presidency of Taft, are said to have agreed that the appointment of Stimson would be ideal on every score and would command approval in both continental United States and the Philippines.

His great ability as a lawyer, his administrative experience as President Taft's secretary of War and ex-officio supervisor at Washington of Philippine affairs, the diplomatic ability that he demonstrated in his recent mission to Nicaragua as representative of the President are cited here as among his preeminent qualifications for the Philippine post.

DRY LAW 'EVIL INVASION,' SAYS CHURCHMAN

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The prohibition law is an invasive law whose "evil fruits are becoming daily more apparent," the Third Anglo-Catholic Congress of the Episcopal Church has been told from the platform.

The greatest claim the most ardent prohibitionist dares make for the law cannot compare in the smallest degree with the damage to the moral character of the country, Lawson Purdy, director-general of the ethnity organization of New York told the delegates here.

The eighteenth amendment is opposed to natural law, the speaker said.

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Twenty-five hundred clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, by a vote of almost two to one, it is announced by the Rev. Dr. Charles Livingston, a member of the board of directors of the National Episcopal Church Temperance Society, have recorded their belief that prohibition is a failure as a solution for intemperance.

The ministers believe that it has had sufficient trial, that the Volstead Act should be modified, that the eighteenth amendment should be repealed, and they are willing to cooperate with the society to secure "more practical legislation in the interest of true temperance."

NAVY REGRETS PASSING OF LITTLE SCORPION

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Leaving a trail of poignant memories affecting thousands of naval men the U. S. S. Scorpion was mustered out of commission at the Philadelphia Navy Yard today.

Converted from a steam yacht the Scorpion went into commission in 1898 and for 19 years was on continuous foreign duty, the longest foreign service of any vessel in the history of the United States Navy. Two-thirds of the permanent officers of the navy have served on the Scorpion.

Formerly named the Sovereign the yacht was bought by the government for $300,000 from M. C. D. Borden, "the Calico King," of Fall River, Mass., and New York and on the outbreak of the Spanish American war was sent to join the blockading squadron at Santiago Cuba.

The most stirring part of the Scorpion's service began in 1908 when she was ordered to Constantinople as station ship. During the World War, while interned in the Golden Horn, she was the target of a score of allied aviators who mistaking her for the Sultan's yacht tried to bomb her. On six occasions bombs fell within 50 feet of the gun boat.

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Feverishness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria: its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria." Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies," worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

CORNERSTONE OF Y. W. C. A. LAID

A Bible, a copy of the constitution of the Y. W. C. A., new coins of each denomination, a picture of the board of directors and staff, a picture of the four old "Y. W." buildings, copies of the Boston Evening American and other Boston papers were placed in the cornerstone of the new million-dollar Community Activities Center of the local association when it was laid at Stuart and Clarendon streets, this noon by Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, vice-president of the Boston board.

Eight hundred business girls and Y. W. C. A. workers and friends gathered for the ceremonies at 1 o'clock and were addressed by Lieutenant Governor Frank C. Allen, representing Governor Fuller.

SLOW GAIN FOR MRS. NICHOLS

Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, wife of the Mayor, continued to show improvement at the Boston City Hospital today.

A bulletin issued at noon and signed by six physicians read:

"Mrs. Nichols shows a slow gain. Her lungs have cleared. Temperature 99.6, pulse 96, respiration 32. She is now taking nourishment well and getting more sleep."

The Mayor's wife passed a comfortable night, she shows more improvement each day and physicians are hopeful that she is now on the road to recovery.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Plans Being Made for Assembly Ball to Be Held January 7

ONCE AGAIN THE CYCLE OF THE SEASON REVOLVES TO bring uppermost the Assembly Ball, that fills its very own exalted niche in the doings of Boston's very uppermost "Upper Crust." Early in the New Year of 1928, on January 7, will this stately function take its imposing way within the Hotel Copley-Plaza, where Samuel Hooper-Hooper and his associates have reserved, as is their custom, practically the entire first floor.

OF COURSE, THE UPPER CRUSTY SET KNOWS IN ITS HEART of hearts that the Boston season, without its Assembly Ball, would not be a Boston season. Therefore its inclusion in the Winter's calendar is a matter of quiet rejoicing among the elect. The Assembly itself, and the Assembly's invitation list culled and pruned and kept strictly within its time-honored, rigid bounds—form a most formidable social bulwark. Against it the froth of lighter and less magnificent occasions spends itself uselessly.

LIKE A ROCK OF GIBRALTAR STANDS THE ASSEMBLY, WHAT matters the younger set's informality and casualness in matters of entertainment? What matters it that the younger set, to whom hours on hours of syncopation is an evening's diversion, vote the Assembly and its lovely cotillion a bore? What the younger set thinks of the Assembly plays not the slightest part in its arrangement. For this is a function dedicated not to the "just-outs" and that ilk, but to their elders, who come out for its pomp and pageantry, even though it be their one and only appearance of the Winter.

THE ASSEMBLY IS THE LAST WORD IN FORMALITY. IT IS dressed magnificently in the correctest of correct black and white, the most dazzling of jewels and the handsomest ball gowns. Perhaps it is true that it is the Brahmin caste's last stand; perhaps its appeal is to the older regime alone. But for all that the significance of its invitation list is well nigh immeasurable. To be on it is to have the hallmark of Bostonian aristocracy. And for what better mark of elegance could the most aspiring wish?

MISS ZOE SHIPPEN IS A VERY BUSY YOUNG WOMAN THESE days. To be a merry bud, is one thing. To be a breathless and prospective bride is still another. But to be a youthful artist in the throes of a first "one-man" show is to be in a class quite apart. Miss Shippen is dividing last days before her opening between final touches to various important portraits to concentrating said portraits in Grace Horne's Gallery, and to arranging for a tea to commence the exhibition.

THE TEA IS ARRANGED FOR MONDAY AFTERNOON NEXT AND inaugurates with a personal touch the two weeks' exhibition. Adorably does Miss Shippen transfer to paper adorable children. These she does in pastels. And with her nimble fingers manipulating red crayon she portrays subjects of maturer years. A most individual young woman, she, creating for her matter a most individualistic field. There are not many portrait artists as young as she whose measure of fame is so large and so greatly merited.

WHAT BAZAAR COULD GO ON WITHOUT A "BABY" TABLE? Certainly the Fete of St. Christopher bazaar could not, and would not. For the very young person of the family there will be a stall literally swamped in exquisite things and necessary things. Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., heads this particular group. And some of her assistants are Mrs. George Eddy Warren, Mrs. Robert Amory, Mrs. Phillip Dexter, Mrs. Freeman Allen, Mrs. Archibald Blanchard, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Henry Sturgis Grew, Mrs. Stephen Sleeper, Mrs. Alanson Daniels, Mrs. Edgar Wrightington and Mrs. Louis Bacon.

DOTING MOTHERS AND DOTING GRANDMOTHERS, TO SAY nothing of cousins and aunts, will find the baby table a magnet of irresistible lure. A bazaar innovation is to be an "Old Oaken Bucket" all brassbound and ancient. It is the emblem of the "beverage" table. And since the beverages are to be served from the dainty hands of the season's buds, there will be a special zest to them. Also there will be a special zest to bridge, played in the foyer, where gigantic playing cards form the chief decoration and inspire to brilliant playing.

AS FOR THE CHARITY BALL ITSELF, GRAND CLIMAX TO THE Fete, there are several details that give it special zest. Mrs. Phillip Saltonstall, Jr., is its chief director. And her husband is master of ceremonies. And it is expected that the first big ball of the philanthropies' season will draw the buds of the season, since their maters are all on the patroness list. And where the buds are there will be their many swains, to make a joyous young set occasion.

To Make Sturdy Bodies and Rosy Cheeks—

Shake Up Health!

GROWING CHILDREN need three things in abundance—lime to make strong, firmly-knit bone and sound, flashing teeth; iron to make rich red blood and vitamins A, B and C to build muscle and nerve tissue.

But kiddies are full of likes and dislikes. Often the foods most essential to their growth and health they refuse. And over their heads Nature hangs these mournful signs—"Underweight", "Anemic" or "Soft-boned."

Here is the new-day and delicious way to introduce the "three essentials" in to the child's diet—serve Loft Chocolate Flavor Sweetened Malted Milk! Take three teaspoonfuls per glass of milk—add just enough hot water to make a paste—then mix with milk—shake—and serve hot or cold to a child—and you give it the most nutritious "liquid food" Nature or Man can supply.

Don't confuse this drink with the chocolate-powdered concoctions on the market. Loft Chocolate Flavor Sweetened Malted Milk is made with pure malted milk—not skimmed milk, which you know is robbed of its precious butter fats in which are hidden vitamins A, B and C.

And as for deliciousness—just recall your own soda fountain recollections! What childish palate would say "No" to that exquisite taste!

FREE SHAKER—To Start the Child Right!

For your child's sake, begin serving this incomparable health drink immediately. Note how the cheeks fill out—how they bloom—how much more energy, life and vivacity in the child. For this delicious drink is literally filled with health magic.

Now we make you an amazing health proposal. Solely in the interest of starting the child right.

Below is our offer. It is good for the balance of this week only. Act on it at once—to avoid disappointment. "Shake up Health!"

$1 SHAKER FREE with your first purchase of 1-lb. tin of Loft Chocolate Flavor Sweetened Malted Milk (price 50c)

The Shaker alone is worth double the cost of your first investment—a handsome, full-sized shaker of durable glass with graduated markings up to 16 oz. and a gleaming, highly polished metal top.

Remember, while they last—so act now!

Shipwreck Victims Prey of Sharks Off Coast of Brazil

Bahia, Brazil, Oct. 27 (I.N.S.).—Gruesome tales of shipwrecked passengers in shark-infested waters, were told here today by Antonio Ferreira, one of the first survivors of the Principessa Mafalda to be landed here.

Ferreira declares that he personally saw a shark attack one man, and that the waters about the sinking Italian liner were reddened apparently by the blood of others who had been attacked by sharks.

FEAR CAPTAIN WENT DOWN IN SEA TRAGEDY

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 27—Captain Simone Gugli, and many of his officers, probably went down with their ship, the Principessa Mafalda, when the vessel foundered off the coast of Brazil, Tuesday night, according to an announcement made by the Navigazione Generale Italiana, the ship's owners, today.

The offices of the Navigazione Generale Italiana said they had received many reports of Captain Gugli standing on the bridge of his sinking ship, directing the work of rescuing the passengers and crew, but as yet they have not received any word of his rescue by any of the five ships that picked up survivors of the wreck.

First Survivors of Sea Tragedy Land in Brazil

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—The French steamship Moselle, carrying 30 survivors of the Italian steamship Principessa Mafalda, arrived at Bahia today.

The rescue party included 18 officers of the Italian vessel, which sank Tuesday night off the Brazilian coast.

The rescued members of the crew described horrible scenes which accompanied the sinking of the Italian vessels, as passengers, including women and children struggled in the water and were drowned in the darkness.

Four passengers rescued by the Moselle died from exhaustion after being taken aboar the rescue ship. They were given the last sacrament just before death by Friar Angelo, a passenger on the Principessa Mafalda.

Fear that others of those rescued by the various ships that sped to the scene of the sinking vessel also would die of exhaustion, was expressed by the men landed here.

The rescued crew members appeared much shaken by the sinking of their vessel and some expressed the belief that when the final death toll was counted it would be found that from 600 to 800 persons had been lost.

The crew said that only two first class passengers had been saved by the Moselle, these being a Walter Borger and wife. They said that the lifeboats of the Principessa Mafalda were lowered when the ship was sinking fast, and expressed belief that Captain Gull went down with his ship.

Some of the passengers of the Moselle, however, were inclined to criticise those in command of the Principessa Mafalda, declaring that there was a two-hour delay in the lowering of the lifeboats, the boats only being lowered when the ship was fast sinking.

WORCESTER GIRL GETS SHARE OF $175,000

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Frances Downing Potter, of New York, Eleanor Downing Hamlin, of Portland, Maine, and Margaret Sawtell of Worcester, Mass., will share equally in the $175,000 estate of the grand-aunt, Anna E. Downing, according to the terms of her will filed for probate here.

Miss Downing, who died September 20, at the age of 102, was believed to be the oldest native of New York city.

Train Falls 150 Feet

The utmost in breakfast delights

YOU who dine in fine hotels and restaurants often find a coffee there which you would love to match. Then don't go home and be content with a coffee which can't compare.

In dining places which strive to excel the coffee is selected by experts. They compare one coffee with another until they find an exceptional blend. Then they adopt it as a feature.

That is why La Touraine is served at so many places seeking favor from those who love the best.

But that same La Touraine is being served in countless homes around you. Your neighborhood grocer supplies it. It costs no extra price. All you have to do to get it is to insist on La Touraine.

Then you are serving on your table the most exquisite coffee blend which America has developed. Your guests or people who go elsewhere will find nothing to compare.

Try La Touraine. Serve on your home table the finest coffee served in the world. And with no extra cost. Order La Touraine of your grocer today.

Why they use La Touraine Coffee

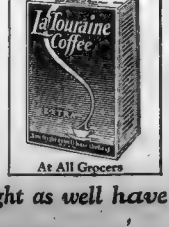

Because it holds the top place in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees.

Because experts regard it the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

Because the four finest coffees that grow are combined in this blend. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Three of them cost 50% more than ordinary coffees. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

Because the blend is exclusive and secret. No other blend resembles it. Experts spent twenty years in perfecting this ideal flavor and aroma.

Because E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests and selects every coffee in this blend. Because La Touraine, despite its supreme quality, costs no more than other high-grade coffees.

Young Lady Makes Record In Buying Fur Coat at Scott's

Nancy Howe, popular announcer at station WBIS, wearing one of our fine Taupe Pony Coats, new Beaver collar and cuffs.

A young lady from New Hampshire called Saturday to buy a fur coat. She had very little time, having a luncheon engagement and planning to attend the Harvard-Dartmouth game. She thought that it would be impossible to select a coat and make satisfactory arrangements and wear it to the game, particularly as she could make but a small deposit. IN THE RECORD TIME OF 12 MINUTES she was on her way, happy and amazed, wearing a beautiful Fur Coat—this record transaction due entirely to our immense stock, efficient sales force and UNIQUE FUR CLUB. Three others from different parts of New Hampshire also called at SCOTT'S Saturday morning and they, too, enjoyed the game in their beautiful new Fur Coats, purchased by joining our Unique Fur Club.

Esther Muir, playing at Tremont Theatre in "Honeymoon Lane," wearing one of our Broadtail Coats, squirrel trimmed.

WESTON COLLEGE INN EMPLOYE SENTENCED

Theodore Pope, employed at College Inn, Weston, was arraigned in Dedham Court today on charges of larceny of a cash register a pair of shoes, a bath robe, a lamp and $9 in cash from his employer, Arthur O'Neil.

Judge Clifford B. Sanborn found him guilty and imposed a sentence of six months in the House of Correction which Pope appealed. He was held in $500.

FACES TRIAL IN E. BOSTON KILLING OF 2 YEARS AGO

A two years' hunt was ended today when Atilio Manlo, alias Gaetano Viola, wanted for the alleged murder of Orazio Fascher of Chelsea street, East Boston on Sept. 4, 1925, was brought back to Boston by Special Officer Peter McCoy. Manlo was arrested in New York.

Manlio, who lived on Cottage street, East Boston, is charged with having shot Fascher to death in a grocery store on Porter street. He was arraigned before Judge Fosdick in Suffolk Superior Court and committed to jail to await trial.

OFFICER NABS 2 IN FENWAY HOLDUP

Walter Adonis doesn't look like one at all today. He looks somewhat like his boy friend Arthur Collings, who has a rather shopworn appearance.

They took a swing at a policeman named Kelly.

There was more to it than that and Adonis, who is eighteen and lives in Audubon road and Collings, who is twenty-four and of Belvidere street, will take their changed faces into court to answer holdup charges growing out of a bit of excitement in today's early hours.

HEARS CRY FOR HELP.

Officer Kelly has a sly habit of changing to civilian clothes when he is going home after his nightly traffic tour out of Station 21. He was buzzing along in the Fenway in his cozy little car, with his chin resting on his knees, when the welkin tinkled faintly to a cry for help from back of fire alarm signal headquarters.

With a gurgle of delight and anticipation, Officer Kelly unfolded and disentangled himself from the cozy little car and hastened into the darkness toward the cry, as six men slid away through the bushes, leaving a prostrate form on the ground.

TOLD TO RUN ALONG

The form turned out to be George M. Titer of Atlantic avenue, Beachmont, and from him the cry had come as he was about to be robbed.

As Officer Kelly bent over Titer, two youths emerged from the bushes and asked Officer Kelly what he was doing. The officer remarked innocently that he was trying to help a poor fellow out.

"We'll take care of this and mind your business," one of them is alleged to have cried out.

As has been said the pair swung at Officer Kelly and it was a few minutes later that he placed them gently in his car with Titer and drove to the station.

REFUSES TO HELP PUT "GANTRY" ON THE STAGE

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—The New York Sun says today that Bayard Veiller has destroyed the manuscript of his dramatization of Sinclair Lewis's novel, "Elmer Gantry" and returned his $2,000 advance royalties because he believes production of the play would offend "too many people, especially clergymen." He spent six months on the novel.

SUSPECT IN HYDE PARK FIRES IS SET FREE

Fred Galvin of Hyde Park avenue, Roslindale, was exonerated of a charge that he set fire to houses on Woodlawn street on October 3. Judge Perrine in West Roxbury Court today found no probable cause and ordered him discharged. Seven homes were burned with a loss of $75,000.

Wife Gets Divorce After 37-Year Row Over Table Knives

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—A honeymoon argument over the proper place for knives on a well-set table has ended after 37 years in divorce court here. A decree was awarded to Mrs. Martha Bucher, who favors the right-hand side of the plate.

Charles Bucher, who remained, according to his wife, a staunch defender of the left-hand side throughout the 37 years of bickering, did not contest the suit.

"It began right after we were married," said Mrs. Bucher. "He kept arguing about those knives all the time and would never let up. At last I told him to forget it. I thought 37 years long enough to argue about anything. He started a quarrel and then left me."

NEWSPAPERS MAKE HISTORY, SAYS EDITOR

The printing press is the greatest of all achievements and discoveries and the newspaper is the mainspring of modern civilization, Colonel Robert R. McCormick, editor of the Chicago Tribune, told the Boston Chamber of Commerce at its second Fall meeting today.

"Ever since its invention," he said, "the printing press has played a terrific part in the history of mankind. It has overturned governments, precipitated wars, replaced tyranny with democracy. From the time of Gutenberg, every known kind of government has attempted to control it.

"All efforts have proven futile. Attempts to control it merely drive its operators into anonymity; merely substitute the irresponsible for the responsible.

KIND THE PEOPLE WANT.

"Individually, most people rail at the newspapers of today. Collectively they will not tolerate any other kind.

"We receive comment, largely unfavorable, upon the selection of news for publication. The principal charge, of course, is that we lean toward sensationalism. The charge is perfectly true, but if sensationalism in itself is an objection, how much of literature can escape?

"What is more sensational than aviation and radio, or the redemption of mankind by issuing silver money? Others than journalists made a sensation of Darwin's dry tomes.

"If you say to me that newspapers are inexact, I will say, 'Amen.' If you will say they are dishonest, I will say their honesty is in the ratio of eleven out of twelve. Accuracy is difficult and rare of attainment.

AN ABSURD CHARGE.

"Another charge against newspapers is that they are controlled by their advertisers. It is as absurd as a number of false statements which by continued reiteration win a certain belief.

"In a copy of the Chicago Tribune, for instance, there were 12,306 separate advertisements paid for by people of all religions and political beliefs. The largest advertiser in this newspaper last year produced 2.1 per cent. of advertising revenue.

"As for the charge that the news is distorted for ulterior purposes, it would be as ridiculous for a milk company with a big investment to put poison in its milk. News is our staple in trade and we ourselves would be the ones injured if we distorted it.

CRITICS ARE MANIFOLD.

"The fact remains, however, that the bulk of angry controversy rages about the newspapers. This might seem strange because no newspaper, so far as I am aware, is so extreme as many books and numerous periodicals.

"It seems that the explosive property of the printing press has devolved upon the newspaper."

B. G. Hawkins of Jordan Marsh Company, chairman of the committee on Progress Week, told of plans of the chamber for the promotion of New England's renown throughout the coming week.

"Next week is Progress Week," he said. "Its purpose is to show the world that the Boston Chamber of Commerce is striving to place Boston in the light of a community that is marching ahead with the same spirit as in the past 300 years, and is urging its members and friends to combine their civic spirit for the advancement of the six New England States."

TROOPS POUR INTO CAPITAL OF RUMANIA

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct 27 (A.P.) —Reports reaching here through various underground channels, since the frontier is tightly closed because of the censorship, said today that the situation in Bucharest is extremely critical.

Public buildings, ministries and railroad stations are heavily guarded by troops and gendarmes, and all gatherings of more than four persons in the streets are immediately dispersed.

Troops were reported to have been called in from the provinces to practically surround the capital and occupy strategical points throughout the city.

Bucharest was said to be seething when the report circulated that the Bratiano government intended to arrest Juliu Maniu, leader of the National peasant party.

4 BADGES, BUT THEY SAY HE ISN'T A DETECTIVE

Armored with a breastplate of four bright nickel badges, Charles T. Lamb was picked up in Scollay square by State Detective Joseph Burke today and charged with unlawfully presenting a State police badge.

The man wore, besides the State badge, one of the Internal Revenue, a Boston newspaper fire badge and a Street Commission Permit Division badge.

ROMANCE IS SEEN IN FLIGHT OF AMUNDSEN

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.) The New York World today advanced romance as a possible explanation of Captain Roald Amundsen's sudden and unexpected departure for Norway, with the resultant cancellation of a lecture tour and postponement of a banquet in his honor.

In accounts of reports that marriage by Captain Amundsen would not be unexpected by friends of the explorer, the World said the name of a woman was mentioned.

ACID Intoxication

Are You Willing To Be A Victim?

Contrary to what most people think, the excess acids which fill the blood and which the kidneys strive to filter out, must be neutralized and the condition corrected by means of other acids such as that of grapes and lemon juice. It is from these, combined with lithia, that JAD SALTS are made. For years, thousands have used this simple, harmless, natural method for "Acid Intoxication" to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, relieve bladder irritation and aid in preventing more serious disorders.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding or if you notice signs of rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness and sleeplessness, get about four ounces of JAD SALTS from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and note the blessed relief.

JAD SALTS is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complaints.

RADIO DIALOG

by

C. WILLIAM RADOS

A CRISP, fast moving half hour was the work of the Troubadours last night. Starting with their characteristic selection "Grins" they made faces all the way through. Whether this unit is a chamber orchestra or just a popular orchestra is something historians will decide. With most listeners we have interviewed it is a popular orchestra.

WTAG had something similar with the "Butter and Egg boys." These players were broadcasting music from the shows of 1922 and 1923. Cold storage eggs?

The station was steady, as anybody with eggs should be. The only other out-of-town station we noticed beside WLSI was WJAR, also of Providence, and also loud.

Early in the evening Bob Emery and his gloom chasers tackled a live ghost. With the aid of props and a little imagination they did an excellent job. However, it is really poor business, Bob, to recommend turning off the lights even when listening to a ghost story.

WOR via WNAC featured the Singing Sophomores. Their harmony and humor filled a necessary spot in the evening. Those sophs sounded qualified to take up graduate work and become Dr. of Music. A doctor has need for some of the stuff radiated at various parts of the evening.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

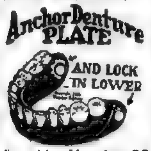

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Thought his case was hopeless

Resinol cleared away pimples in a week

Lexington, Mass., March 5:—"I had been suffering from shaving pimples on my neck for years and, I believe, had tried everything under the sun for them without avail. One day on a friend's advice, I purchased some of your Resinol Ointment and was astonished at the quick results. After a week's constant use, the pimples disappeared completely, leaving the skin clear and fresh. I had thought my case was hopeless, so you can readily see why I was overjoyed at this cure! You can be sure that henceforth you have one more loyal booster for your product." (Signed) Fred J. [illegible]

WHAT COULD BE FAIRER?

The Beaten Path Is the Safest Road

Nine times in ten the surest way is the travelled highway. There may be short-cuts, but there are hazards also. What most people do is usually the safe thing to do.

Three generations of friendly, satisfied customers have found Osgood's the beaten path, the travelled highway, the safest road.

They will tell you gladly—ask anybody!

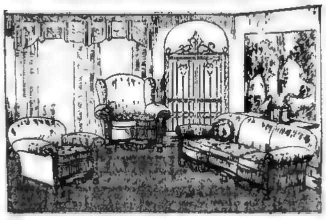

Your own grandmother will tell you of our truthful advertising, of our uniformly low prices, our made-to-fit-the-customer credit accommodation.

She will tell you that we are always glad to sell any of our advertised merchandise at the advertised price. She will tell you that there is no substitution here; that the furniture you select is the furniture delivered to you; that your bill accurately describes each piece by name and factory number—positive protection.

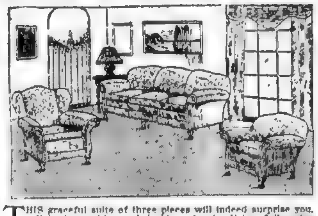

Your relatives, your neighbors, your friends—all will tell you of our reliability; and yet, no one of them will tell you that our prices are high. We could not maintain our present leadership if this were true.

Surely then, this universal acclaim clearly points to every prospective buyer the way to the travelled highway, and at the same time the shortest cut to safety.

By Ruth Elder

Special Cable Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE S.S. LIMA, Oct. 27.—We went on board the S.S. Lima accompanied by many of the residents of Horta, among whom were Mrs Mackey, Mr. Skey, the British consul, Fernando Da Costa, Governor of Horta, and several American and English boys who are employed by the Western Union there.

They remained on board until a late hour. It was only after they had gone that we could retire to our staterooms.

Before daylight Tuesday the Lima steamed out of the harbor on its way to Lisbon.

George and I were given seats at Captain Raoul Carlos Pinto's table. Captain Pinto is a most genial and jolly person. We always looked forward to being near him at dinner time.

We wondered sometimes if the Portuguese passengers thought we Americans were extremely rude for they are most formal and dignified at the table while we at the captain's table did much talking and laughing.

At noon, when the boat stopped, we discovered that we were on the other side of Mount Pico. An hour of sailing from there brought us to Saint Jorge at 11:30 a. m.

LUNCH IN OLD SHANTY

We were taken ashore by Captain Pinto and Second Mate Carlos to the home of a friend of the captain. We were escorted to a charming little old shanty in back of the home.

The floor was covered with straw and wine barrels lined the walls. In the center of the floor a table, covered with an immaculate cloth, was set and we were served the famous St. Jorge cheese, preserves and wine.

They looked at me in astonishment when I insisted upon a glass of water instead of wine. Among the guests was an extremely amusing Portuguese, Senor Martins. We called him our Portuguese Charlie Chaplin for he kept us in a constant uproar of laughter.

At two o'clock we reached the island of Tercerica, where we remained until 9:30 p. m. We went ashore with Captain Pinto, Mate Carlos, Mr. Ledger, Mr. Reid and several others.

Tercerica is really a most beautiful island. We enjoyed a trip up the mountain, where we found lovely madonna lilies and disa flowers of every color growing wild. The air was invigorating, and I felt wonderfully revived and refreshed after being in the stuffy stateroom all morning.

GREETED BY BANDS

At San Miguel we were met by the United States consul, Mr. Day, who escorted us to his home. Later we went for an automobile ride, and saw the town of Pontadelgada.

Next afternoon a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Day. We were delighted to be introduced to the noted Marshal Gomes Da Costa, head of all Portuguese armies, and who is now in exile following an edict handed down in Lisbon.

On reaching the beautiful island of Madeira, I was awakened by the bands which had come out to meet the Lima.

I must say here that I am afraid we Americans do not know enough about Madeira to appreciate its loveliness. One must see it to realize how beautiful it really is.

We continued our journey up the big mountain. I shall never forget the wonderful scenery. They have a semi-tropical climate the year round, and consequently flowers grow everywhere.

As we steamed out of the harbor several small launches, filled with natives of Madeira, escorted us.

ACTION IN PARIS AVERTS TARIFF WAR WITH U. S.

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Government officials were hopeful today that the threatened tariff war with France had been definitely averted by the French government's action in suspending, until a treaty can be negotiated, the high rates recently imposed on American goods entering that country.

Regarded here as discriminatory, these schedules called forth numerous formal exchanges between Washington and Paris. Washington finally suggested most favored nation treatment and eventual return to the schedules in effect before the new French rates were imposed. The French government's action in granting the latter request, announced at Paris, was seen here as providing a basis for an amicable settlement.

A Real Drama of Boston Theatrical Life After the Curtain Drops

CHAPTER 39

FOR some moments after Blanche de Saint Solle had gone, muffling her sobs with that absurd, lacy handkerchief, Becky remained leaning against the table, staring straight before her.

A fury that was so much a thing of the nerves that it shook her physically descended upon Becky. Her body was suddenly a bar of white hot metal, scorching, searing.

She had fought cleanly and fairly, her weapons true, and life had beaten her down. It had taken love, taken her heart. But it should not take the last small thing she had. Her honor—in the eyes of the world—might go. Her self-respect she would keep.

She might go down. Fame, glory, honor, life itself might go down. What did she care? Suddenly she realized how little all those things meant. Her life—why her life had flowed out like a fountain on the night her love had been killed. Scarlett must go.

She had no plan of action when she went to her husband's room. She was not afraid. She had nothing to lose, everything, now, had little value for her. As she went in she thought to herself: "How different this is from the last time, when I went to get Nan. Then everything was at stake, love, happiness, security. And now—only the honor of a woman who has been a faithless wife and a false friend."

Scarlett Ranted

Scarlett was coming toward her, smiling, but with an expression of surprise on his handsome face. He had taken off his coat, and stood there, the stiff, white bosom of his shirt crossed by the black thread of braces buckled in silver. Scarlett said: "Excuse the negligee, my dear. You didn't knock, you know." And then he was off, congratulating her, predicting future glories, future happiness. It was, "We will do this," and "we will do that."

She struck the dressing table sharply with her fan, exclaiming "We—We! We will do nothing. We separate tonight."

"What, has success gone to your head so quickly? Or have you found your heart again? My dear Becky, you wouldn't break up our charming partnership? Our agreement—"

"Has been broken, Dan. It's quite useless, the game is played out. I have spoken to Blanche de Saint Solle. She has told me everything." Then, in a changed voice: "Oh why did you do it? You've had plenty of money, everything. Why couldn't you have come to me if you needed more? Why didn't you tell me? I was so proud of the change in you."

Scarlett must have sensed the futility of denial. For, flinging himself moodily into a chair he fingered his mustache saying: "It wasn't money. As a matter of fact, Becky, you've never understood me. It's the thrill of the thing, half of it. The satisfaction of outwitting someone. I could always have had plenty of money if it had amused me to work. But it didn't. It goes back a long way. I came from a respectable enough family, not poor. But although they gave me pocket money I soon found the charm of pilfering small amounts from the household.

"Then my sister, a stupid girl if ever there was one, established a secret engagement with a chap my father didn't approve of. My mother helped them to meet secretly for she never was brave enough to oppose my father openly in anything. I discovered the thing, and from that day forward my mother never dared to refuse me anything.

Dan Puts Up His Gun

"If only I made it my business to pry into other people's affairs, to discover their little secrets I could have all the power I coveted. It was almost ridiculously simple. There are so many skeletons in the most respectable closets. But when we came over here I had really made up my mind to turn over a new leaf. If Blanche de Saint Solle had only not been so temptingly stupid."

"I grant you she is a fool," Becky interrupted, "And no doubt she richly deserves the treatment she's received. Nevertheless I must ask you to return her jewels. I suppose you have them?" She moved toward the dresser; Scarlett was before her.

"You have no reason to suppose any such thing."

Becky laughed. "I know it now. You have them there. I often wondered why you were so particular about that lock."

Scarlett folded his arms across his chest and stood, smiling down at her. "I always intended to return the Rajah's bracelet, my dear. I couldn't possibly dispose of such a well known jewel. It was destined to go back to Blanche."

"I would dare anything." Becky picked up her fan, quite coolly turned toward the door, and found Scarlett before her, his back against the panel, a small revolver in his hand. She recoiled for an instant then, opening the fan, said calmly "Put it up. I call your bluff this time, old friend."

"You are desperately certain, Cinderella?"

She shrugged. "Admit you are beaten. I have the whip hand."

Scarlett replaced the automatic in his pocket, and, with something of sportsmanship, bowed. "I am afraid you have. I think I've learned a good lesson however. We'll return the stuff and call it quits, shall we? I'll behave better from now on."

"There's no future for us, Dan. I expect you to leave in the morning. I shall start suit for divorce at once."

"Divorce . . . for a marriage that's never been—but," Scarlett broke off, resuming: "What if I refuse to go?"

"You won't refuse, and you know it."

Scarlett approached, took hold of her arms, and pressed them so that it hurt. "Damn you, Becky," he said in a low voice. "You've stood in my way since the day I met you. You walked out with my happiness when Nan Estabrook

DRIVE ON DEATH PENALTY IN BAY STATE

Sleuth Dogs Trap Suspect Hiding in Auto

NEW DRIVE TO ABOLISH CHAIR

100,000 Signatures Will Be Sought in State-Wide Campaign

Massachusetts women are lining up in one of the most determined drives against capital punishment ever staged in this State. And they are asking the men to help, especially the clergy.

One of the leading spirits in the fight is Dr. E Groesbeeck Mitchell, a prominent Back Bay woman physician who today suggested setting apart some Sunday or week day as "Anti-Death Penalty Day" and donation of a $20 gold prize by some public-spirited person to the high school boy or girl who writes the best essay on abolition of capital punishment. Dr. Mitchell said

Dr. Mitchell

"We feel that a prize essay contest for high school pupils would stimulate more family interest in the movement than would a contest for college students or more mature persons in that the children would be more apt to discuss the subject with parents and elders in the household and seek advice. This interest would radiate.

"Ten citizens signed an initiative petition and it was filed at the State House on Sept. 19. As we found that time was too limited to secure and check up the 20,000 signatures required to bring the petition before the Legislature, we withdrew it. We would have had no difficulty whatever in harvesting the 20,000 signatures. The chief obstacle would have been the checking.

A STATE MOVEMENT.

"Therefore, the committee decided on a new course, and the Massachusetts Council for the Abolition of the Death Penalty was born. Our headquarters are at No. 4 Park street. The council is not affiliated with any group in or out of the State. The plan is to get an expression of sentiment entirely within the Commonwealth, to keep it a State movement.

"The aim is immediate abolition of the death penalty and substitution of life imprisonment. Our first move is to issue petitions and secure 100,000 signatures. A bill will be presented to the next session of the General Court, and there is every reason to believe that the desired result can be accomplished.

"We are making a special appeal to the clergy to help personally or to ask parishioners to be responsible for petitions, which must be returned not later than January 1. We need funds to carry on the work. We have started on nothing at all, other than a determination to do everything in our power to stamp out the death penalty.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

The advisory committee of the Massachusetts Council for the Abolition of the Death Penalty follows:

The Rev. Leroy W. Coons, Mrs. Walter E. Dewey, Victor A. Friend, David Niles, Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, the Rev. Clarence R. Skinner, Mrs. Gertrude L. Winslow, Mrs. N. P. Hallowell, Professor Gorham W. Harris, the Rev. Eugene R. Shippen, Hector M. Holmes, John Pratt Whitman, Professor Francis S. Sayre, Dr. Richard C. Cabot, Daniel G. Crandon, Dr. Henry S. Elkind, Harold K. Estabrook, William H. Randall, the Rev. Charles R. Joy, the Rev. Smith Owen Dexter.

Mrs. James W. Elliott, O. Benjamin Gerig, Mrs. Wenona O. Pinkham, George E. Roewer, Mrs. H. L. Southwick, Herbert Parsons, Miss Charlotte B. Hallowell, the Rev. Henry H. YOUNG DENIES HE'S OTHER MAN IN DIVORCE

Patrick Young, named as "the other man" in the suit for divorce brought by Frank E. Wentworth, Boston commission merchant, against Mrs. Idella Wentworth, took the stand in Middlesex Probate Court today and denied any undue friendship with the woman.

The witness declared that he had always addressed the defendant as Mrs. Wentworth, and denied ever having sent any love messages to her.

"Is it true," Atty. John P. Feeney asked, "that you visited Mrs. Wentworth every other day?" "No," was the reply.

Q.—Did you ever hug or kiss or pet her at any time at her home? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever give her your picture? A.—No.

A letter and postcard previously introduced were then presented to the witness and he was asked if he wrote them. He denied sending any messages to Mrs. Wentworth.

Q.—How did you address Mrs. Wentworth? Did you call her Idella or Dell? A.—I always called her Mrs. Wentworth. I didn't know her first name.

Previously testimony was introduced by counsel for the husband to show that Young, a gasoline attendant in Somerville, had been much in the company of Mrs. Wentworth.

Cross-examined by Atty. Goldberg, the witness was again questioned regarding the postcard which bore no address and had no name signed. It was Wentworth's contention that the card and letter were handed to a Mr. Dodge by Young to be given to Mrs. Wentworth.

Young was asked if the writing on the card was his, and replied:

"I can't say it isn't, and I can't say it is."

He was then asked to write the following by Attorney Goldberg:

"Dearest: Just a little love note because you're all alone. Dear, don't be cross with me because I love you." The writing was then offered along with the postcard.

MINISTER REFUSES TO SIGN CRASH COMPLAINT

Newton authorities had a hard time today trying to convict Joseph Muradito of Adams street, Waltham, of a drunken driving charge, but they will try once more, even if an Auburndale minister whose car was crashed did refuse to sign the complaint. Muradito was arrested last night for drunkenness, after his machine was in collision in West Newton with that of the Rev. Percival M. Wood, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale. In the crash, Marie Petrucci, Columbus avenue, Waltham, said to have been riding with Muradito, suffered a broken leg.

In court, Muradito was also charged with drunken driving, but Patrolman J. E. Greene, arresting officer, said he did not see the actual driving. Then the minister was asked to sign a new complaint, but refused. The policeman then signed and the minister probably will be summoned to testify later.

SUICIDE'S LEAP STOPS 40 MILES OF MILLS

Stafford, Conn., Oct. 27 (I. N. S.).—Robert W. Pitkin, of Manchester, rode to a spot near the state police barracks here today, climbed a sixty-foot pole bearing a high-tension electric power line and jumped onto the wires.

The shock threw Pitkin to the ground, killing him almost instantly, and broke the wire, completely shutting down industry through a mill district forty miles long. Pitkin was in financial trouble.

DOOLEY HEADS SCHOOL BOARD BALLOT LIST

The election commissioners today drew names of candidates for positions on the official ballot, to be voted upon at city election, November 8.

Harry J. Dooley, candidate for the school committee, won first place in that group. Dooley will be remembered for his part in the last gubernatorial contest when he beat out Joseph B. Ely of Westfield for the nomination for lieutenant-governor in the primaries. Dooley afterwards withdrew from the fight.

Names of the candidates for city council and the order in which they will appear on the ballot follow:

Ward 1—Thomas A. Niland, William C. [illegible] Dennan.

Ward 2—Arthur V. Sullivan, Thomas B. Green, Harry F. Sheehan.

Ward 21—Frederic E. Dowling, Stanley Chase.

Ward 22—Edward M. Gallagher, Francis A. McLaughlin, Frank [illegible] Jameson, William J. [illegible] John L. Lehan, William P. Doherty.

[illegible] Heffernan, a candidate in this ward died today, so his name was not drawn.

The School Committee candidates will appear in this order:

Harry J. Dooley, Joseph V. Lyons, Joseph J. Hurley, William G. O'Hare, John F. Harding, Francis C. Gray, Frederick L. Bogan.

ROOSEVELTIANS TO FORCE WET OR DRY ISSUE

A scathing arraignment of prohibition by Robert M. Washburn and Joseph Walker, and a bitter attack on the State Commission on Administration and Finance by Treasurer William S. Youngman, featured the anniversary meeting of the Roosevelt Club at Hotel Bellevue today held in observance of the 69th birthday of Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Walker, until recently a dry advocate, declared that the evils of the liquor traffic are worse than ever before, that the prohibition act cannot be enforced, and that the eighteenth amendment is in itself a violation of the Constitution.

President Washburn of the club said the club intends to force the wet or dry issue to the fore in the 1928 elections, adding that "the bootlegger votes the ticket. Only the rich drink with safety, though at great expense. The poor, with hooch, go crazy or die, or both."

Treasurer Youngman asserted that the Commission on Administration and Finance "is ruling Massachusetts in a manner that no bureaucracy of France ever got away with," and the Supreme Court should determine whether or not we are to have a commission form of government in this State.

Former Speaker of the House Walker gave his reasons for recently changing his attitude in regard to the dry question.

"I changed my position on national prohibition," he said, "because I consider it as much my duty to recede from a position I have taken as to stick to it when I find I do not agree with my former views.

MAINE HUNTER KILLED BY OWN GUN AS HE FALLS

Bridgeton, Me., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Robert Field, 36, a World War veteran, was killed by the accidental discharge of his rifle today while hunting in the Magalloway region of the Rangeley Lakes with four other Bridgeton men. Word to this effect was received here by the wife of one of the members of the party, who said he stumbled and fell while making his way through the underbrush. Field was employed as an express driver.

FESS SAYS COOLIDGE MUST SAY "NO, I WON'T!"

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—[illegible] Fess of Ohio continues to tell inquirers that in his opinion President Coolidge will be renominated unless something more than the celebrated "I do not choose" statement is put before the voters.

In a letter to William John Eynon, of Washington, the Ohio Senator said:

"I have little doubt that unless another statement is forthcoming the President will be renominated and in that case overwhelmingly elected."

LEAD POLICE TO CAR WHERE HE IS CAUGHT

Fitchburg, Oct. 27.—Two big police dogs were chiefly instrumental in the capture here, early today, of an alleged burglar who was trapped in his hiding place in an automobile, to which the dogs led a squad of police.

The prisoner gave his name as William Dorian, twenty-three, of Boutelle street, Fitchburg. Police said he admitted a police record.

Arraigned on a charge of larceny of an automobile wheel and parts he pleaded not guilty and was held in $800 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

The dogs were owned by Jacob Kark, proprietor of the Mohawk Garage on Lunenberg street. For several nights past Kark has been disturbed by suspicious sounds coming from two enclosures used for parking used cars.

Last night Kark put his two dogs on watch. Early today he was awakened by their growling. Clad only in his pajamas, Kark rushed out and located Reserve Officer Richard E. Hanley. They were reinforced later by a squad of police sent in the patrol wagon by Sergeant William E. Hackett.

The dogs, at first, refused to allow the police to enter the smaller enclosure in which they had been placed but Kark quieted them and turned them loose in a larger enclosure.

After a few minutes of apparent uncertainty, the two dogs concentrated their attention on a sedan in the center of the larger parking place. With drawn guns the police threw open the doors of the car and young Dorian, hands in the air, crawled out.

According to the police he had in his possession a supply of automobile keys and small tools. Police are now trying to link him up with several automobile accessory thefts.

Shell Pipe Line Corporation 5% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, due November 1, 1952, guaranteed by Shell Union Oil Corporation, (this issue),	30,000,000	$80,000,000
Capital Stock, of Shell Union Oil Corporation, one class, no par value, representing (as at June 30, 1927 giving effect to this financing), capital and surplus equity of $234,822,950,		10,000,000 shares

From his letter, J. C. van Eck, Esq., President of Shell Union Oil Corporation and Chairman of Shell Pipe Line Corporation, further summarizes as follows:

SHELL UNION OIL CORPORATION: Shell Union Oil Corporation, through its subsidiary companies, is one of the largest producing, refining and marketing companies in the oil industry of the United States, properties including net production of approximately 100,000 barrels a day, 1,850 miles of trunk and main pipe lines and refineries with aggregate capacity of 180,000 barrels a day. Sales, 1926, over $149,000,000. Shell Union Oil Corporation owns the entire capital stock of Shell Pipe Line Corporation, except directors' qualifying shares, and unconditionally guarantees principal, interest and sinking fund of these Debentures.

SHELL PIPE LINE CORPORATION: Shell Pipe Line Corporation, formerly Ozark Pipe Line Corporation, is the oil pipe line owning and operating subsidiary of the Shell Union Oil Corporation in the middle west, its pipe line system extending through the length of the Mid-Continent field northward to the refineries of the Roxana Petroleum Corporation in Kansas, at East St. Louis, Illinois, on the Mississippi River, and at East Chicago, Indiana, on Lake Michigan.

ASSETS: Consolidated net assets of Shell Union Oil Corporation and subsidiary companies, based on balance sheet as at June 30, 1927, giving effect to this financing, after deducting all liabilities other than funded debt, were $314,822,950, or more than 390% of the $80,000,000 combined total funded debt now to be outstanding. Total current assets, exclusive of proceeds of this financing, more than 5 times total current liabilities. Shell Union Oil Corporation and its subsidiary companies have no floating debt.

EARNINGS: Consolidated net earnings of Shell Union Oil Corporation and subsidiary companies, after depreciation, depletion and drilling charges and before Federal Income Taxes, available for interest, for 1926 were $38,857,966, or more than 9½ times the $4,000,000 annual interest requirement on combined total funded debt to be outstanding upon completion of this financing; for the six months ended June 30, 1927 were at rate of approximately 4 times the combined requirement; and for five and a half years ended June 30, 1927 were at average annual rate of $22,918,634, or more than 5½ times this requirement.

Net earnings of Shell Pipe Line Corporation for 1926, after depreciation and before Federal Income Taxes, available for interest, alone amounted to $5,521,231, or more than 3½ times the $1,500,000 total annual interest requirement on this issue. Net profits on capital investment of Shell Pipe Line Corporation, after all charges and taxes, for the 5 years ended December 31, 1926 averaged 23.8% and for 1926 were 24.9%.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Proceeds of these $30,000,000 Twenty-five Year 5% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures will be used for construction of additions and extensions to and increasing the capacity of the pipe line system of the Shell Pipe Line Corporation, and for other corporate purposes.

SINKING FUND: Annual cash Sinking Fund for purchase or call and retirement of these Debentures, first payment $450,000 on November 1, 1928, and at rate of $450,000 a year in quarterly instalments thereafter, will be sufficient to retire at least 35% of this $30,000,000 issue by maturity.

Application will be made to list these Debentures on the New York Stock Exchange

Football Coaches Lead Tough Life Victory, or Death | Baseball and Privacy Magnates Have None Big Grid Week End

By NICK FLATLEY

GRID COACHING, AS SHERMAN SAID, IS —

TAD JONES, New Haven advices inform, will coach another year at Yale. The big Blue team has whacked Brown and the Army, and is riding high on the wave of glory just now. Different a few weeks ago, just after Georgia had beaten the Bulldog. Tad was given the air then. He was a flop, and all through.

The big coal and football man will be released again, in the rumor league, if Dartmouth wins the large game in the Bowl Saturday. The grid coach has a tough old life. He has to win all the time, or the wolves howl madly. Arnold Horween has been under fire in certain Harvard circles all Fall. He was saved from his lop minded critics when his team defeated Holy Cross, but the clang of the hammer on the anvil picked up louder than ever after Dartmouth had blown across the Stadium.

Nick Flatley

Some Harvard men are now offering bets to the effect that the Crimson will not win another game this year. That shows a deplorable lack of dear old college spirit. There is that lack, everywhere, when victory does not grace each week end.

Down at Brown Tuss McLaughrey is getting a fearful roasting, and the boys are calling his team the Scrap Iron Men. The same youths were lauding Tuss as the miracle man of the gridiron a month ago, and speaking of the Iron men with venerated breath.

The students at Ohio State voted that Doc Wilce, one of the most famous of the coaches, is getting senile and should be guillotined. Regardless of the fact that Doc developed Chick Harley, one of the best ever, and has turned out champion teams every so often.

No bubble reputation is as fragile as that of the football coach. Small wonder the good ones demand big salaries. They earn them in spiritual travail and mental anguish. No mortal likes to read of himself as the biggest ninny that ever patrolled the pike. According to football knockers, a nitwit is an intellectual giant compared to the average coach.

BAN JOHNSON'S SUCCESSOR WILL MERELY ENJOY THE FRUITS OF BAN JOHNSON'S SUCCESS.

Oh why does daddy moan and groan
And growl when I approach?
You must not mind, my darling boy,
He's just a football coach.

WATCH ANY DAY FOR BRAVE MANAGER EDICT

THE day is not far distant when the new manager of the Braves will be named. His appointment will be made from Boston, according to the promise of Judge Fuchs, president of the club. The Judge had intended to wait till midwinter, and give the situation all possible consideration.

But the wild guesses that fly about will force his hand, undoubtedly. He has been talking with a dozen baseball men about the job, and each and every one has been nominated as Banny's successor by some ambitious reporter.

Any magnate is fair game when he's trying to find a manager. A baseball owner has no privacy whatever. His manager is his own business, but the public that pays the bills feels a natural interest, and will be prying whether or no.

No other business has to transact its big deals with the whole world sitting in. Salaries should be a private matter—they are in the stage, movies and other amusement enterprises—but John Public will not have it that way with baseball. It's his game and he must know all about it. Which proves as well as a million other things that the popularity of baseball isn't in the slightest danger.

Lack of interest would be a bad sign indeed.

THE OPTIMISTS ARE NOW ASKING US FOR YALE TICKETS.

SATURDAY LOOMS AS LARGE GRID DAY OF YEAR

SATURDAY'S grid program holds as much prospect of excitement as any one Fall day could. The collision between Dartmouth and Yale looks like the big game of the year. Two great teams, both at the peak, meet in a pastime that should furnish more thrills to the square inch than a movie producer could dream about. The year's champ may emerge from this mixup, for in the light of later events, the Yale-Georgia verdict can be tossed aside.

The war between the Boston College Eagles and Fordham is likewise something to look forward to. Here we have two teams that will sail into the bombardment with a view to vindicating their coaches, and settling an ancient rivalry as well. That mixture always means fun for the onlookers.

These two games, and the Indiana-Harvard shock at the Stadium, will give the boys almost enough debating to have them dumb when the returns begin to come in.

First World Title Bout for Hub Since 1920

The first world's championship bout staged in the Hub since Johnny Wilson took the middleweight title away from Mike O'Dowd back in 1920 will be held at the Arena on Monday evening, November 14, when Tony Canzoneri of New York and Red Chapman of Dorchester battle for the featherweight crown under the auspices of the Suffolk A. A.

Chapman recently lost to Benny Bass in Philadelphia in a bout that was booked as a world's featherweight championship affair.

Promoter Tom Goodwin claims that Canzoneri is the rightful holder of the title by virtue of his victory over Johnny Dundee in New York Tuesday night, and that the winner of the coming bout will be undisputed leader of the class.

Chapman has been long in the front ranks of contenders for the crown. He gave Dundee quite a licking in the Hub right after the Scotch Wop had won the title from Eugene Criqui of France, but he was forced to enter the ring over the weight limit and was refused the crown.

Dundee then decided to enter the ring again and was matched with Canzoneri, who defeated him decisively.

According to all the rules of the ring, Canzoneri is now the champion and Goodwin feels that he is within his rights in billing the coming bout as a world's championship clash.

GREEN AND SAVAGE

HOT DOG! THE YALE BULL PUP WILL YELP WHEN THESE INDIANS CUT LOOSE

EVERETT CAPTAIN OVER AGE IS CHARGE

By JOE CASHMAN

Angi DiMott, captain and fullback of the Everett High School eleven, may not be permitted to play against Medford in Saturday's all-important schoolboy grid clash.

Medford has protested against DiMott playing on the ground that he is over twenty years old, the age limit for high school players, and Headmaster Wilbur J. Rockwood of Everett High says the backfield ace of the team will not be allowed to play until he is satisfied beyond a doubt that the star is eligible.

DiMott's age has been questioned before as there are conflicting records regarding his birth. Originally he was listed as having been born in Punxsutawney, Pa., on either June 4 or Aug. [illegible] 1907. If either date is correct DiMott is over [illegible] years of age and is not eligible to play.

According to [illegible] affidavit signed by his mother, Mrs. [illegible] DiMott, however, Angi was born Angelo Mazza in Harmony, Pa., on June 4, [illegible] This affidavit was sworn to [illegible] a member of the school committee at Everett.

Headmaster Rockwood says that [illegible] the affidavit is sufficient to prove DiMott's eligibility in a court of law, but that in the interest of public decency, he will [illegible] all about the legal aspects of [illegible] and personally conduct an investigation.

DiMott's absence from the lineup [illegible] Everett's chances of winning, as the team's offense is built around the sturdy little Italian.

Nothing developed today in the [illegible] Malden [illegible]. Headmaster [illegible] Jenkins of Malden announced [illegible] that unless Everett agreed to play the game in Malden or Medford before last night, Malden would look another opponent for November 12. He received no word from Everett and the game is believed to be definitely off.

Opinion in Everett seems to be evenly divided as to whether the School Committee acted wisely in refusing Malden's offer to stand all expenses for a game played either at the Pearl street stadium or in Medford. Headmaster Jenkins refused to allow Malden to play in Everett, claiming that the Everett field was unfit for football.

The Everett Kiwanis Club, of which Elmer E. Spear of the School Committee is vice president, today passed a vote of confidence in the committee because of its stand in the controversy.

Curley to Open up St. Nicholas Arena

New York, Oct. 27.—Jack Curley, wrestling promoter, has taken over the St. Nicholas Arena in West [illegible] street and will promote boxing bouts there on Monday nights. Three ten-round bouts have been arranged for the opening show next Monday night with Sammy Dorman and Petey Mack meeting in the final event.

The same night Cannonball Eddie Martin, former world's bantamweight champion, will make another bid for fame in a ten-round bout with Eddie Anderson at the Broadway Arena in Brooklyn.

Glennick Now Under Bob Goldman's Wing

Bobby Goldman, manager of Al Mello, the New England welterweight champion, has added Johnny [illegible] of Nashua to his stable of boxers and [illegible] claimed the New England [illegible] championship for the [illegible] Nashua fellow.

[illegible] has been boxing for three years, has defeated Baby Dark Cloud, [illegible], Duke Menard, [illegible] Hebert and Wee Willie [illegible] among others.

SCULL AND BRILL OUT OF NAVY GAME

Philadelphia — After yesterday's workout at Franklin Field Head Coach Lou Young, of Penn., announced that Scull and Martin Brill, two of his star halfbacks will be started against the Navy on Saturday. They are still nursing injuries received at the Penn State game.

The starting backfield against the Navy will consist of Paul Murphy at quarterback, Granville Carrol and Wascolonis at halfback and Murray Forbes at fullback.

BELGIAN HEAVYWEIGHT CASTS HAT IN RING

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Gus Wilson, optimistic dealer in fistic [illegible], perhaps better known as Jack Dempsey's trainer, today announced that he was preparing to [illegible] on America's heavyweight [illegible] one Pierre Charles, heavyweight champion of Belgium. [illegible] in this country Dec. [illegible] and will venture immediately into the situation, Wilson said. Jack Sharkey, Johnny Risko or Jack Delaney will be sought for his debut.

THREE CORNERED TIE IN CHICAGO 6-DAY RACE

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Stockholm and [illegible] and [illegible] and Debaets [illegible] early this morning with McNamara and Walker and Beckman and Winter in the six-day bicycle race at the Coliseum. They regained the needed lap during a wild "jam."

Fitton Team Plays Peabody Sunday

A rejuvenated Fitton A. C. football team will travel to Peabody Sunday to clash with the undefeated University of Peabody eleven of that city. The Peabody team is captained by Billy Crean, former Boston College star, and has such players as "Jack" Donough of B. C., Ray and Coleman of Holy Cross, Berry of Georgia Tech., Surabian of Williams, Ryan of William and Mary, and other well known college players.

To defeat the Peabody team is the ambition of the Noddle Islanders, as the only defeat suffered by the Fittons was handed to them by the Lynn Night Hawks.

FULLER BACK IN TOLAND'S GYM

Sammy Fuller is back in the gymnasium once more, after a lay-off due to a slight cold, and will train at Toland's gymnasium every afternoon, to whip himself into condition for defending his New England featherweight title against Chick Suggs in the Arena a week from Monday night.

The match is attracting a lot of attention throughout New England, and the early advance sale is the largest enjoyed by the Suffolk A. A. in months. It will be a $20,000 house according to Tom Goodwin, and houses of that size are rare anywhere.

Jackie Donohue and Johnny Sheppard, feature semi-finalists, are back at work again, and Goodwin is busy rounding up the rest of the card.

He has signed Hambone Kelly, and is seeking an opponent for him.

Final Eagle Drill for Fordham Battle

Football frenzy reigns at Boston College. On the eve of the departure of the largest turnout ever to follow a B. C. eleven to a foreign field, the atmosphere around the Gothic towers on the Heights is blue with football and Fordham.

Boston College will wind up its practice for the Fordham game with a secret session at Braves Field, this afternoon. Manager Charley Driscoll will pack the paraphernalia after the final workout and make everything ready for the departure of the Eagle squad tomorrow morning.

Not even the players know where they are bound. Graduate Manager Frank Reynolds states that the B. C. gridders will remain in Connecticut Friday night and arrive in New York about noon Saturday.

The Daley footballers are down fine. They have the right mental attitude, and a sleepless night in some busy Broadway hostelry might mean the downfall of the Eagles when they clash with Major Cavanaugh's team.

This secrecy and determination that permeates from the Eagle war camp serves as a fine stimulant for student spirit and shows how Coach Leo Daley feels about the week-end fray at the Polo Grounds.

Daley admits that he would rather beat Fordham than Holy Cross. The natural rivalry that Daley imbibed while playing for B. C. himself still exists. He could hope for nothing finer in his first year as a college coach than a win over the far famed Cavanaugh and Fordham.

STUDENTS STEAMED UP.

That the student body at Boston College is all agog over the New York game is witnessed by the fact that many of them could not buy tickets at the Heights. Fordham sent 800 tickets to Reynolds to be sold to the students.

Attached to the bottom of the package was a little note requesting that all the ducats not sold be sent

FORDHAM STILL LACKS GOOD CENTER MAN

New York, Oct. 27.—Fordham University's undefeated freshman eleven ran rampant through the varsity in practice sessions, and pointed out to Coach Cavanaugh that the Fight Maroon team had still many last minute touches to make before facing Boston College at the Polo grounds Saturday afternoon.

The scrimmage was short, and was followed by a period of signal practice, board drill and trick work.

The men sought the showers early in anticipation of a longer session today, when Cavanaugh intends to employ the white football and the whitewashed helmets after dark in ter-ferences with regular practice.

The lineup of the first team is still unsettled. Cavanaugh has been having a great deal of trouble with his center position much after the fashion of B. C., which seems to have been suffering from the same ailment.

The passing of Roger Scully, regular center a year ago, has been

By BILL GRIMES.

Unlike the veiled pleas of last week, when the Dartmouth student body, using its broadcast "A," prayed almost in silence for a victory over Harvard, Hanover is now placarded with "Beat Yale" signs.

Since relations with Yale were resumed, Dartmouth has held the "Bull Dog" to a 14 to 14 and was on the short, and somewhat odious, end of a 14 to 7 affair last Fall.

Many happenings in the Dartmouth-Yale game last year will remain vivid for years to come in the minds of Dartmouth men. Dartmouth has never offered a peep regarding the interference which paved the way for Yale to score the deciding touchdown.

The fact that the Yale scouts used the same kicking signal as Dartmouth, so that Yale was always in position to stop every Dartmouth pass, with the exception of the one back on the strong side of the line may have been coincidental on the part of Eli, but they were rumored to the Green. Yet no protest or complaint came out of Hanover.

HULL AND HARMON BATTLE

Top All-Star Welterweight Offering at Argonne A. A. This Evening

Fistic Card Tonight

(10 ROUNDERS)

Jimmy Finley, Louisville, Ky., vs. Bob Lowrie, Scotland.

Vince Dundee, Baltimore, vs. Billy Alger, Phoenix, Ari.

Joey Knapp, New York, vs. Bobby Brown, Lowell.

Willie Harmon, New York, vs Clyde Hull, Fort Worth, Tex.

By JACK CONWAY

WELTERWEIGHTS will go on parade at the Argonne A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

There will be four ten round bouts on the card between carefree members of the 147-pound division. Matchmaker Eddie Mack expects this show to develop an opponent for Johnny Indrisano, East Boston welterweight, who has counted with recent victories over Joe Dundee and Tommy Freeman.

Jack Conway

Willie Harmon of New York and Clyde Hull, Fort Worth batter, will whirl into action in the final ten-rounder. Harmon at one time made his home in Boston. It was not until he hopped back to New York that Willie started climbing the fistic ladder.

Harmon won over Sammy Baker, Billy Alger, Meyer Cohen, Tommy White, Billy Leonard, K. O. Phil Kaplan and Tommy Freeman. Just now he is shooting for a title shot and intends to start his drive by eliminating Hull.

The Fort Worth warrior showed here last Summer, losing a close decision to Billy Alger at Braves Field. Hull is the youngster who walloped Pete Latzo at Dallas at the time the Scranton miller was boss of the welterweight group.

THERE is considerable interest in the New England bow of Jimmy Finley of Louisville, Ky., who tackles Bob Lowrie of Scotland, in one of the tens.

Finley is claimant of the welter title of the South. He broke into the sport years ago when a mere kid as a promoter—then turned manager of fighters, and, when some of these showed signs of falling down, went into the ring himself.

He has been in the active ring since 1921 and participated in more than 110 battles, winning 88 by knockouts.

IN the second 10, Vince Dundee, brother of Joseph, the champion, mixes with Billy Alger, the Arizona barbed-wire man—a melee between a straight, hard puncher well endowed with both speed and science, and a chap who is credited with being the best welter club fighter in America. Both have showed here before and made good. They need no formal or lengthy introduction.

The third 10 tonight brings back into a Boston ring Joey Knapp, the well-liked New York welter, a clean, game performer, and Bobby Brown of Lowell.

JOHNSON IS TO LEAD NEWARK

Washington, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Walter Johnson, for 20 years a big league star, has signed a contract to pilot the Newark team of the International League over the next two seasons at a salary termed by Paul Block, owner of the club, "the highest ever paid a player-manager" outside the major circuits.

The "Big Train" affixed his signature to the document late last night a few hours after announcing by radio that he "had about decided" to accept the Newark offer. The contract will permit him to pitch an occasional game to bear out his conviction that his famous arm still has a few victories in it. The actual figures of his salary were not announced.

In granting the pitcher, at his own request, an unconditional release, Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, said he was confident that in view of Johnson's extraordinary service the other clubs of the league would not stand in his way. Waivers were not sent out until October 20. Under the rules a ten day claiming period follows.

In his radio address, Johnson said he desired to stay in baseball. "I don't believe I could quit if I wanted to," he added.

Terrier Harriers to Race Nutmeggers

The greatest cross-country team that ever represented Boston University will attempt to chalk up its third successive victory at the expense of Rhode Island State tomorrow afternoon at Franklin Field.

The Terrier hill and dalers are led by Captain Fuller Lockhart who is the first man who ever won a major letter in minor sport. He did this by placing in the intercollegiate cross country meet last year. Lockhart has finished first in both meets his mates have taken part in.

Tufts Vs. Wesleyan

Medford, Oct. 27.—The Tufts cross-country team will entertain the Wesleyan team in the first home meet of the year Friday.

ragged thus far this Fall. Bad passes in the Lebanon Valley and N. Y. U games marred many an attack, and on numerous occasions cost the Maroon considerable yardage.

Cleveland, substitute pivot, has not been much better during the time he appeared in the line. Scully is good on the defense, but this has not been enough to make up for his offensive deficiency.

Jim DeLany, who has been doing the punting for the team from fullback or right halfback positions, has been tried at end, where he occasionally took a hand a year ago, but whether he will remain in the wing berth is unknown.

He fits well in either position, is husky and rangy, and full of speed. The fact that he is the best kicker of the lot may keep him in the backfield, but his prowess as one-half of a possible forward pass combination may move Cavanaugh to retain him at end.

Jack Walsh, although marked with scars of past skull and knee injuries has stuck out every game thus far, and has played a remarkable game at the other wing position.

Paired with him were Al Politis, regular wingman, who was lost through injuries at the very start of the year, and Harry Kloppenburg, a transformed tackle, who appeared too clumsy for an end man.

Bell Gives Vacca a Severe Beating

Detroit, Oct. 27.—Referee Al Day gave Archie Bell, Brooklyn bantamweight, the decision over Johnny Vacca of Boston in their 10-round bout which served as the semi-final to the Risko-Heeney bout here.

Bell, smarter, and faster than Vacca, and a better ring general won this bout without being extended, and gave Vacca a severe beating in the bargain.

It was their second meeting and the second victory for Bell. He floored Vacca in the second round with a right to the heart and the Hub lad remained down for the count of nine.

last year, it was noticed that Yale was using a most unorthodoxed defensive formation. The Eli tackles were the only players on the scrimmage line until just before the ball was put in play.

The centre trio and the ends were back about a yard. Just before Dartmouth's starting signal, the ends, guards and centre slipped into the line and except on one or two plays, always directly in the path of the play.

It is doubtful if such a situation would have been of long duration had Bob McPhail been at the helm, but it must be said in fairness to Eddie Dooley that Yale timed its shift remarkably well and did not show its hand even to those on the sidelines until late in the fourth quarter.

BREAKS AGAINST GREEN.

In the last two encounters in the Yale Bowl the breaks have been against Dartmouth. Three years ago Eddie Dooley spotted Yale seven points, when he dropped a punt early in the first quarter, forcing his teammates to battle to tie the Blue when they should have won. Last year the Bowl was a den of horrors to Dartmouth.

What is in store for the Green on Saturday?

It is possible that there will be four new men in the starting line-up for Dartmouth. Dick Black, the hard plunging fullback, who scored on Yale last season, and Mike Sherman were out of the Harvard game through injuries.

Black and Sherman are on the mend and there is a chance that both will be in at the opening kick-off. How long they will be able to stand up under the strenuous going is a problem.

Art Gow will be at centre for the Green. Leo Kilkelley is recovering from the concussion he suffered during the Harvard game, but he will not be right for Yale.

After four weeks on the hospital list, Gow is right again. Gow is a real centre and Dartmouth will not suffer from the substituting of the Roxbury Latin boy for Kilkelley.

FUSONIE A SAVAGE END.

For two reasons Al Fusonie will probably start at left end for Dartmouth against Yale. In the first place, Al played wonderful football in the Stadium. He was bringing Crimson runners down with a thud, which thrilled the old-timers and chilled the Harvard backs.

Fusonie's work stood out as one of the most striking features of the conflict. He was down the field cleverly under punts and nailed his man.

Secondly, Jack McAvoy, who started the Harvard game and apparently has had the call all season over the Latin School boy, has been suffering from a heavy cold for two weeks. McAvoy went into the Crimson contest in anything but tip top condition.

Upon his return to Hanover he was ordered to stay in the Dick Hall house for a couple of days.

Fusonie won his letter his sophomore year. Through injuries he was of little use to Dartmouth last season. He is a particularly vicious type of player. So strenuously does he go about his work on the gridiron that, time and again, he knocks himself out along with his opponent.

Fusonie has been nursed along carefully all season by Harry Hinman, with the result that he is right now to go in and smash things up to the queen's taste.

Dartmouth will have one more short workout after today's session. Coach Hawley is spending all of his time smoothing out the Green's running and over head game.

The boys did not function up to their standard against Harvard and Hawley is out to get them back in the stride they had when they met Temple.

The varsity will hold a short signal drill tomorrow and then depart on the noon train for New Haven.

NAZARIAN TO MEET GEHRIG

Everything is set and ready for the three finish wrestling matches to be staged tonight at the Grand Opera House under the direction of Paul Bowser.

In the main event, Mike Nazarian, undefeated Armenian champion wrestler, will meet a hard nut in the person of Herman Gehrig, winner of the McFadden Elimination Tourney Medal.

Big Ned McGuire, bigger and stronger than ever, is set and ready for his finish match with Andy Zaharoff.

Bill Rudy of scissors hold fame will be in for a tough evening when he meets Charlie Adams, the tough eastern light heavy, in a one-fall finish match.

Leon Burbank will referee all the bouts.

"Cav" Says

One of the Greatest Satisfactions a Coach Gets Is to Watch a Player Develop

By MAJOR FRANK W. CAVANAUGH,

Head Football Coach at Fordham University.

Former Head Coach at Boston College.

PROBABLY the satisfaction in coaching is the thrill enjoyed in watching men develop while under your guidance. Sometimes the improvement is noticeable in a whole group of individuals.

There will come a day when, in eleven men who have been playing together as a group, suddenly, like clear gold shining through the shale, will glimmer the teamwork that is indicative of a championship outfit.

Such a day had that Princeton team of destiny when, after being led 19 to 0, they came back and won from Chicago, 21 to 19.

Roper must have known after that day the success that his outfit was going to achieve. Another such day occurred in the Bowl at New Haven in 1923, when, after being led 10 to 0 for a half, the Yale outfit came back and murdered West Point, 32 to 10.

I knew that I had a champion in the making when the Boston College outfit of 1920, led by Luke Urban, handed Yale that trimming in the Bowl. And great as all of these teams were, their seasonal starts were nothing to send the coaches into ecstasies.

A GROUP of players that develop collectively as a team, has a way of arriving suddenly at that state and their arrival has a soundness about it that augurs well for their success during the rest of the season.

You can tell when they are going to last or when their efforts are a mere flash in the pan. There is smoothness, a confidence, an attitude that speaks louder than words. "What if they are a few points ahead. We'll soon make those up!"

There is probably even more personal satisfaction in watching a player who has been only ordinary, or even a despised sub, come into the heritage of stardom.

Some hardworking player who has never missed a practice will begin to perform in the manner that has made Frank Merriwell such a popular character in fiction.

I had such a player on my squad some years ago. He was a guard and had been on the squad for almost three years, for there was no freshman ineligibility rule in those days.

He had tried hard, and was one of the first on the field to practice and the last to leave.

Despite his preparation and hard work his playing was so bad that I would have cut him from the squad, except for the keen disappointment it would have been to him.

In the middle of his third year, however, I was well repaid for the time I had put in with him. He developed a defensive charge that was a sight to see.

My first team would be going along in scrimmage, when suddenly this guard would come bursting through into the backfield where he would lay to and upset things in fine style.

His promotion was rapid and in no time he was on our first team. I don't believe I ever saw anyone so happy in my life, and I knew I certainly never had a more loyal player.

ANOTHER very outstanding case was a star center I had only a few years ago, that is, he became a star, but was only fair until the last game of the season.

I had two centers of about equal strength, the man I have in mind being a more steady passer, while his rival outshone him on the defense.

The week before our final game, I was still undecided, but as one was a senior and the other a junior, I decided in favor of the fourth-year man, whose passing would not fall down.

Neither of the men knew this, and in the final scrimmage, I put our friend, the senior, on the first team, what a battle royal that was.

He knew then he had been selected and he suddenly became a wild man. He was stopping plays he had no business being near. He hit the ball carrier and hit him so hard that I finally stopped the scrimmage, fearing someone would be hurt.

THE day of the game arrived and his practice form was, if anything, improved upon. Opposing backs would be cut down by this avalanche of bone and muscle as though hit with an axe.

People wondered why he had not played steadily all year, not realizing that to some, and possibly the better football players, stardom does not come at the beginning of their career, but as the culmination of long continued effort and struggle and finally arriving is the more appreciated by team, and coach and player himself.

Last Day for H. and Y. Applications

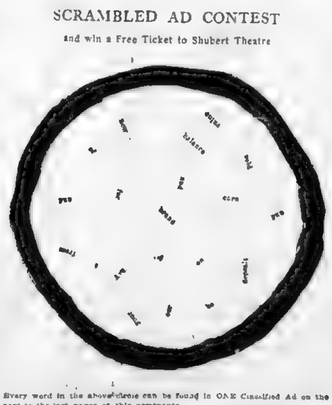

Today is the last day for application for the Yale and Brown games. The Harvard A. A. will receive applications up to six o'clock tonight and the chances are that late applications will be useless this year.

The demand from Yale has been out of the ordinary. Eli backers feel certain that their team will take Harvard into camp with the result that the largest delegation from New Haven in years will arrive at Cambridge three weeks hence.

City Council and School Board Candidates Pledge Aid in Drive for Field

By JOE CASHMAN

Candidates for City Council and School Committee in the coming city election have come to realize that the public is very much interested in the Boston Evening American's campaign for a municipal stadium, and the majority of them are promising to do all in their power to put the drive "over the top" if they are elected.

If the present city council turns down Councilor John F. Dowd's order for $.,500,0 for the work and no substitute measure is passed all the citizens need to do to have a municipal stadium is to return to office those candidates who are in favor of the project.

GALLAGHER SUPPORTS IT.

William J. Donahue candidate for the City Council from Brighton, hopped aboard the stadium band wagon early this week and now comes Edward Gallagher, another candidate from the same district, with a pledge to work for a field for interscholastic school athletes, if elected.

"A municipal stadium is one of the things most needed in Boston at present and I will do everything possible to have one erected if I am successful in my fight for election," said Mr. Gallagher today.

The Brighton candidate former head of the Boston Infirmary Department and a past District Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, wishes to go on record as being in favor of anything that would be of benefit to the youth of the city and he feels that a stadium would tend to make the lot of the children happier than playgrounds.

Of course, if the present City Council makes provisions for the erection of a municipal stadium, the voters needn't be interested in the stand of the various candidates in the matter but if nothing is done by those in power the much-needed field can be secured by sending to office those who favor the plan.

REPORT DUE THIS WEEK.

The report of the committee on finance of the City Council on the Dowd order, due Tuesday but delayed because of the illness of Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, the Mayor's wife, is expected before the end of the week.

If the report is favorable, Councilor Dowd, who is a member of the committee, confidently expects it will be. The Roxbury solon is all prepared to wage a fight for the passage of the order on the floor of the council at the next meeting, Monday afternoon.

McMahon to Protest N. Y. Boards Decision

New York, Oct. 27 (I N S).—Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden's official matchmaker and protester, today announced that he would appear before the New York State Boxing Commission tomorrow in vigorous protest against the commission's recognition of George Courtney, Oklahoma "cowboy," as the logical contender for Mickey Walker's middleweight title.

Even the imperturbable Tex Rickard left the links at Hot Springs, Va., long enough yesterday to telephone instructions to McMahon, the latter said, adding that he would place contracts he holds before the commission which call for a Walker-Flowers return bout.

La Barba is anxious for reinstatement, that he may be eligible to enter collegiate boxing tournaments.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"THE Boston College legions have started their march to Fordham, according to information brought to me from the front line trenches by Myles MacSweeney, poet laureate of the sporting department," said Mr. Boston today. "Myles is authority for the statement that some of the Maroon and Gold rooters have even appropriated the family baby carriage so that they would have a vehicle to wheel them over to Broadway.

"Old flivvers have been tied together, while the more prosperous will journey to the Big Town along the regular routes of travel.

"Funny how everybody wants to attend anything that is staged in New York nowadays. I find from experience that there are other attractions in dear old Gotham other than athletic events but I wouldn't want to tip off any bunch of college boys about them. They're too young.

"The Boston College-Fordham game has received a tremendous ballyhoo. All this because Major Frank Cavanaugh, or just plain Cav, as he is known to his coadjutor Al Nickerson, and the gang out on the Heights—is the Fordham coach.

"No need to spend any time telling of the things Cav did for B. C. Nobody denies the fact he is the greatest one-man coach in the business. He developed some mighty teams at B. C. Two of his outfits were good enough to beat Yale. Naturally B. C. was then dropped from Old Eli's schedule.

"I LIKE Cav. So does everybody else who really knows him. I wouldn't care a hoot if his football team never won a game. I like him for what he is and not for the things he has done on the gridiron.

"Cav is a man. That's saying a lot in these days of efficiency experts and football advisory committees.

"Cav always shot straight. When Uncle Sam stepped into the big fight, Cav was living happily with his wife and their regiment of youngsters.

"'Guess I'll soon be shouldering a gun, ma'' he said to his wife. 'When our youngsters grow up I wouldn't want any of them to think that their daddy dodged the Great Adventure.'

"Cav enlisted as a private and came out of the big fight a major after having been sprayed with gun fire. A piece of shrapnel hit him on the face and caused a serious wound. There are those who believe that Cav's present trouble with his eyes is the result of the injury received in France.

"THE Fordham team that will face Boston College will, no doubt, have Cav's spirit, but, unfortunately, it has not had a great deal of his first-hand coaching. You see, buddies, after Cav got settled down to work at Fordham the trouble with his eyes kicked up. He has spent his days and nights in a dark room in the Fordham Hospital. It was only the other day that he was allowed to go out into the open. And now he wears heavy green glasses to shade his eyes from the sun.

"But they can't keep Cav from talking. He'll tell his Fordham team a few things before it steps into action against B. C.

"I'd love to be in the locker room when Cav starts talking. What a talker he is. I think he could talk life into a cigar store Indian. He fires his gang with the same spirit that carried him to fame and glory during the war.

"THERE isn't anything I wouldn't do for Cav, but yet I'll be rooting for Boston College to win Saturday. Coach Leo Daly has a fine team and it is prepared for the test of strength.

"Cav will try everything he knows to enable Fordham to win, but if Fate frowns on him I do not believe he will be unhappy. At heart Cav is still a B. C. man. He is the type who never throws the old love away. For Cav above all things is a man."

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

There are two ways I know of by which a golfer can find out how to shoot 18 holes in 73. One is to ask Railroad Jack, who answers any question. The other is to observe the experience of Harry Vardon when that greatest of players made his exhibition tour in the United States some years back. He appeared every day in a store window and drove balls for the edification of the sidewalk lookers. Vardon said he must have hit more than 100,000 balls. And he said he actually believed this was the best thing he ever did for his golf—the practice perfected and smoothed his swing. It 'grooved' him. The rest of us cannot hit that many but if you get out and hit a tenth of that many it would take a few strokes off each round. And the only way to get down to 73 is to keep taking off a few strokes each season. Practice will do it.

Students Offer up Prayers for Cav.

New York, Oct. 27.—Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, coach of the Fordham football eleven, has thanked the university's student body for joining him in the recent novena made to Sister Therese, the Little Flower, for relief in his eye trouble.

The illness has forced the major to resort to heavy glasses as well as constant treatment and confined him to bed on numerous occasions.

It kept him off the bench for one of the varsity games but shows signs of leaving its victim, and some improvement has already been noticed, both Cavanaugh and his physician assert.

The novena was made a week ago, and the RAM, the student newspaper, asked all to join the major in his prayers.

Menu Help for Tea Rooms

By MARTHA LEE.

SO many New England women have asked me for suggestions and recipes for use in tea rooms that I think we can profitably devote the day to these.

Waffles are, of course, the backbone of the modern tearoom, inasmuch as they can be sold at such an excellent profit and are universally popular. The profits on 150 to 200 orders of waffles average from $21 to $25 on a selling price of twenty cents an order.

Chicken and waffle dinners are always popular. The prevailing prices are from $1 to $1.50. This covers roast or fried chicken with mashed potato and all the waffles you can eat (which is rarely over two), maple syrup, sherbet, coffee.

A four-pound chicken will serve six portions. Serve waffles to begin with and they will cut down the appetite for the more expensive chicken. Steak and waffles is a popular combination, also grilled ham steak and waffles, Southern style, creamed chicken on baked crisp waffles and also baked ham with glace sweet potatoes and hot waffles.

For afternoon tea waffles with honey or maple syrup, also with fresh crushed fruit or with butter scotch sauce, all are popular. Gingerbread waffles with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream are an excellent item, too. Here is my own often-repeated true and tried waffle recipe, also some other recipes particularly adapted to tea room service.

Martha's Waffles—Separate the whites and yolks of two eggs, three if you feel generously inclined. Add to the yolks one tablespoon of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt and one cup milk. Sift together one and one-half cups of pastry flour with four level teaspoons of baking powder and add to the first mixture. Then add a teaspoon of vanilla and a tablespoon of melted butter (for use on an electric waffle iron, add one-quarter cup of melted butter).

Last of all, gently stir in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Heat the waffle iron as directed until a piece of white paper placed between the grids turns dark brown. Then put one to two tablespoons of batter, according to the size of your iron in the centre of the waffle iron, shut down the cover and bake to a golden brown.

Griddle Scones—Two cups flour, four level teaspoons baking powder three-quarters teaspoon salt, two tablespoons shortening, one egg, two-thirds cup milk.

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, cut in the shortening, beat egg, add milk and mix to dough the consistency of biscuit dough. Turn onto a floured board, divide into two portions, work with fingers till smooth, then pat into round cakes one-quarter inch thick. Cut each round into four triangular pieces and bake on an ungreased griddle or iron frying pan. Turn two or three times and have only moderate heat under griddle. Split, butter and serve hot, with marmalade and a pot of tea. The stale ones are nice, split and roasted and buttered.

Fairy Squares—Beat until light with a whisk beater, two eggs, three-quarters cup sugar, add one-half cup water, one teaspoon vanilla. Sift one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt, fold into wet part very gently. Bake in a very shallow cake pan lined with greased paper. When cold, cover with icing and cut into squares.

Russian Sandwiches—Butter thin slices of entire wheat, rye or gluten bread. Chop ripe olives and moisten with mayonnaise. Spread half the slices of bread with the olives. Cover with sardines, split in halves and boned. Sprinkle the sardines with a little lemon juice or vinegar and cover with the remaining slices of bread. Press firmly, cut in halves diagonally and serve garnished with a slice of pickled beets.

Honey Butter—In a small pitcher place four tablespoons butter and two-thirds cup strained honey. Set in a pan of hot water over a gentle heat and stir frequently until mixture is hot and creamy. Serve at once on waffles or griddle cakes. Maple or any other table syrup may be used instead of honey.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

In 1889 Edison made his second trip to Europe. He visited the Universal Exposition at Paris. President Carnot of France lent him his private box at the Paris Opera. As Mr. and Mrs. Edison entered, the orchestra played the Star Spangled Banner and the audience burst into cheers.

Edison and his achievements are highly regarded in Europe. But when the French Telephone Company offered him a decoration which required that he wear a sash, he flatly refused, saying he couldn't stand that. Whitelaw Reid, American ambassador, was present.

Persuaded by Mrs. Edison, he did consent to wear the little red button of the Legion of Honor. But whenever he saw any American coming he would slip the button into his pocket, for fear, as he said at the time, that "they might think he was trying to show off."

Mr. and Mrs. Edison were taken to the top of the Eiffel Tower and entertained by Eiffel, the designer, in his private office. There they met the famous French composer Charles Gounod, who sang and played for them.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

Fried OYSTERS

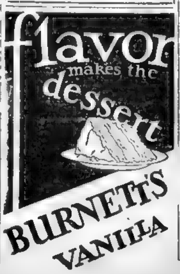

the elusive "sea taste" retained

Select large oysters. Wash them, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dip first in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg and again in bread crumbs. Place in a wire basket and drop into deep Crisco heated until it browns a cube of bread in 40 seconds. Fry until nicely browned. Drain on paper. Serve hot with tomato sauce or catsup.

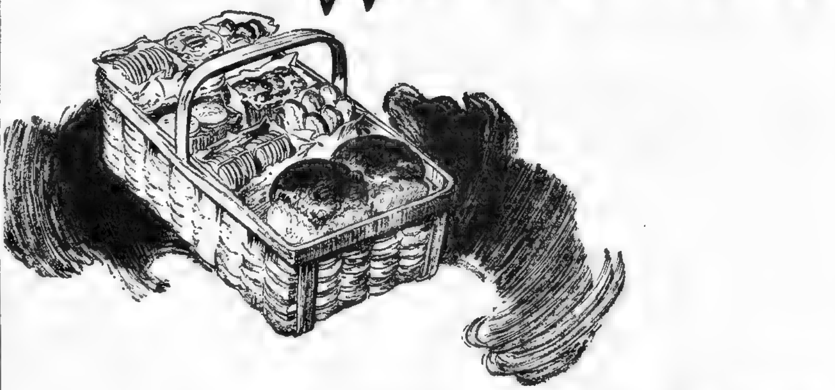

The real "ocean flavor" of the oyster is a delicate, elusive flavor—oysters must be fried in a "delicate" fat. I prefer Crisco for frying oysters, because as Crisco has no taste or odor of itself, it allows real oyster flavor "to come out." Oysters fried in Crisco are a crisp, golden brown outside—tender and digestible inside.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON

by RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Men Joined Faculty When Intellectual Regeneration Developed

WILSON had made a brave beginning at Princeton with the reorganization of the courses of study and the introduction of the revolutionary preceptorial system. But it was only a beginning!

"We cannot stop there," he told the alumni.

He attacked the problem of strengthening the faculty with especial enthusiasm. It was even more important to secure the ablest men in the country to head departments than it was to find suitable preceptors. His scraps of diary and his correspondence from 1902 to 1906 overflow with the eagerness—almost the passionate eagerness—of his pursuit. When he found the man he wanted he would never let go until he had secured him!

A good example was the invitation in January, 1904, to Professor Frank Thilly to take the chair of psychology.

. . . "Woodrow Wilson's epistle was so gracious, so wholehearted, so human that I accepted his invitation to visit him at Princeton without further consideration," says Professor Thilly, who is now at Cornell:

We have Wilson's notes in his diary as to what happened when Thilly arrived:

"Principal interest of the day centered in the arrival of Prof. Frank Thilly of the University of Missouri, of whom we have been thinking as Baldwin's successor, and who had generously consented to come here for a conference . . .

"Ellen and I took dinner at the Hibbens' to meet Prof. Thilly, whom we found most ingenuous and interesting—a man after our own hearts in simplicity and genuineness—and withal of singular penetration and charm in his talk—a highly trained native American of the Lincoln type, with his faculties released by education of unusual range and thoroughness."

Men joined the faculty, indeed, because of the intellectual regeneration of Princeton which was taking place under Wilson's leadership. His new experiments were attracting serious attention throughout the country. Educators felt that here was virile experimentation, healthy growth. Professor E. G. Conklin writes:

"A professor from another university, who came to Princeton about the same time that I did, said to me: 'What brought you to Princeton?' I answered, 'Woodrow Wilson. And you?' 'The same,' he said. Both of us were inspired by his ideals of a university, of education, of life, and we wanted to join with him in the great work which he was doing

Always Thinking Away Ahead of the Rest

Wilson made personal and social contacts an important factor in building up his faculty. When new professors or instructors came to Princeton, President Wilson always made it a point to call upon them, even though in later years it became an arduous matter.

"I am sure that you will enjoy the life at Princeton. It is natural, simple, cordial, and there are many good fellows to supply flavor to the intercourse," he wrote to H. A. Garfield, who went to Princeton to the chair of politics.

He did not object to opposition if it was clear and objective. Dean Fine was constantly disagreeing with him and debating with him, but "he was always thinking away ahead of the rest of us," recalls Professor Edward Capps. On occasion he was "so intent upon an objective that he was not careful of people's feelings." Professor Harper remembers a sharp discussion in faculty meeting in which Wilson disagreed with him. On his return home after the meeting, just at his own door, he felt someone touch him on the arm. It was Wilson, eager to explain that nothing he said was meant as a personal criticism.

"He never flattered anyone in his life. I never saw him do a dishonest thing," Professor Harper says.

Such things as these bound men to Wilson—and held them through all the years. There were later to come disagreements and enmities, which will be considered in their proper places. A strong man thinking ahead of his contemporaries determined in his pursuit of his vision, is certain sooner or later to meet opposition and to make enemies.

Increases in the faculty—especially the development of the preceptorial system and the expansion of the science departments, in which Wilson was intensely interested—involved the problem of new buildings: the physical reorganization of the university. In this activity Wilson had been concerned from the beginning. He had a keen appreciation of architecture, and no inconsiderable knowledge of it.

Henry B. Thompson, who has been chairman for years of the Princeton trustees' committee on grounds and buildings, says of Wilson:

"I think of that period relating to the architecture of the university with much satisfaction, for it disclosed so many delightful and fine traits in Wilson. We were generally in accord although my first experience was absolutely the opposite. Making my first official call at his office in '79 Hall after being elected trustee, in the course of conversation I said: Mr. President, there seems to be quite a difference of opinion on the location of the new laboratories, the physical and the biological; his answer was: 'Thompson, as long as I am president of Princeton I propose to dictate the architectural policy of the university.' Then I remarked, 'To the extent of one vote on the grounds and building committee, and as I have one vote I hope we shall agree.'

"On that particular issue of the location of the buildings we disagreed, and I outvoted him in committee, but the following Summer we were near neighbors occupying cottages at the Ausable Club Reservation in the Adirondacks, and we spent a good many hours over the drawings and specifications of Guyot Hall and the Palmer Laboratory, and we worked in absolute harmony.

"Wilson had instinctively a fine sense of proportion and a keen appreciation for good architecture. His vision for the Princeton campus was a beautiful vision. I have heard him say more than once, 'Why should not a laboratory be as susceptible to good architecture as any other building? I do not believe in considering them merely work shops.'"

It was Wilson who backed with all his power the employment of a supervising architect to meet what one of the trustees called "the deplorable habit of employing a new architect and using a new style of architecture and a new material for every new building that is erected." Ralph Adams Cram, perhaps the greatest authority on Gothic architecture in America, was chosen and has held the position ever since.

"I was impressed with the extreme interest shown by President Wilson in all these matters," Ralph Adams Cram has said, "an interest which extended to the minor details and demonstrated a very broad grasp both of the practical and the architectural principles involved. As I remember, I always obtained from the president the most intelligent and generous support for what I was trying to do, and he always seemed at once to see the problems in the broadest manner . . .

"I remember particularly how once, when we were discussing some large sketch plans, Mr. Wilson got down on the floor and worked over them with me in the most intimate and interested manner."

As a place of beauty and distinction, Princeton owes much of what it is today to Woodrow Wilson, to the determination with which he adhered to his ideals.

Wilson's fire of regeneration extended even to the board of trustees. It was a large board and several of the members, as often happens in such cases, were not only useless but positively detrimental to the functioning of the university. This was clearly recognized by some of the more active members, but they dreaded to take action regarding their fellow trustees.

It was at best a disagreeable business and matters drifted along until the end of 1905. Certain trustees then proposed to seek the resignation of the objectionable members. A request prepared by Mr. Taylor Pyne was signed by a number of the trustees, but when the moment came no one of them wanted to undertaker the actual task, and Wilson himself agreed to do it.

An appointment was arranged in the office of a trust company in lower New York by one of the oldest and most distinguished members of the board of trustees, who, after welcoming Wilson, "literally turned and ran out of the room." The abandoned trustee came in a few minutes later with a bundle of documents which he evidently counted upon to exculpate him.

"I will not trouble you to refer to your papers, Mr. ——," said Wilson. "Under the circumstances it is for the good of Princeton University that you retire from the board. In case you do not offer your resignation I shall move your removal at the next meeting of the board."

Two resignations were promptly forthcoming.

From 1903 onward Wilson's influence in the appointment of new members of the board was considerable. He was charged by his enemies during the great controversies of 1909 and 1910 with seeking the appointment only of "personal admirers." What he really wanted was "live men," not the kind so often chosen to moribund boards as a "distinguished honor," but men who would contribute vitally to the upbuilding of Princeton; and toward the end of his administration, when every appointment was either pro or anti-Wilson, he did seek men who were sympathetic with his policies—as his enemies sought men who would defeat them.

Had he craved "personal admiration" he could have had it at a lower price; he could have rested upon the well won laurels of the achievements of 1905 without carrying forward the tireless campaigns from 1907 to 1910, without the suffering and defeat which his pursuit of his ultimate ideals so swiftly invited. He waged his battles utterly regardless of personalities, his own included—too regardless.

It is astonishing that he was able to accomplish so much in so short a time. There were those even during this earlier time who began to shake their heads over the speed of his progress. "Wilson drives too hard." He was too swift, too eager for men of slower and more cautious minds. He was "too intense." Sometimes he himself expressed his impatience with the "human intractables" that curbed him in and held him back.

"Day of routine. Kept in my office till quarter of 5 on business that might have been finished before 3 if academic men were only prompt in movement and brief in statement."

It would have been a miracle—unexampled in human events—if such a career could have continued unchecked or unopposed. Men stop this side the stars. Diversity is as much a principle of life as unity. It is amazing, indeed, that Wilson should have had so clear a course even for three years. It is amazing that he should have been able to bear the physical strain of such labors, let alone the intense mental activity. He was soon, indeed, to pay the hard penalty of another physical breakdown.

With the achievement of the preceptorial system in 1905 and the reorganization of the university that went with it—Wilson's splendid impetus somewhat spent itself and the forces of opposition, diverse ideas and ambitions, which had appeared years previously a cloud no larger than a man's hand in the clear heavens of Wilson's aspiration, began to spread and darken—began, indeed, to challenge his leadership.

There is a point in the career of every crusader when he exhausts the reservoir of public idealism—when he makes further progress only upon the passion of his own purpose. The struggle was to gather force and bitterness; until, during the years from 1907 to 1910 it was to supersede everything else.

At the heart of the most important phase of the opposition—that centering around the plans for a graduate college—was one of the ablest and shrewdest men on the Princeton faculty, Andrew F. West. He also, like Wilson, was of Scotch-Irish descent, the son of a Presbyterian minister; the same hard-knit fighting stock.

Three years older than Wilson, West had been graduated from Princeton in 1874, a year before Wilson entered as a freshman. He had returned to the university as professor of Latin 1883—the year that Wilson gave up his starveling law practice in Atlanta to go to Johns Hopkins.

He was an eager scholar and philologist, had edited Terence and Richard de Bury. He had a gifted and lively mind, no one could turn a better Latin inscription or organize a finer pageant for a ceremonial occasion.

He loved the outward amenities, the "pomp of place," the "accoutrement of things." He was an ambitious man, "witty and kindly," robust in physique in those days, "a 240 pounder—with a sea captain's ruddy skin, large features, hearty voice and manner" . . .

While Wilson and West were both in the earlier days of Wilson's professorship, heartily in accord regarding the sad administrative situation at Princeton, and both were progressives, Wilson began early to distrust West and to disagree with him regarding what he [illegible] his tendency toward "exclusiveness."

There was, however, no outward evidence of hostility on either side. While West himself probably had aspirations for the presidency of the university at the time of Wilson's election, he showed no mark of jealousy or ill will toward Wilson and was cordial in his proffers of aid in the difficult problems confronting the new president.

Raymond Fosdick, a friend of both men, said they came to hate each other like true Scotsmen but back of it all lay the kind of mutual respect which one hard fighter feels for another. At the time that scandalous stories began to be circulated about Wilson, Fosdick [illegible] to meet West and found him indignant. "While Wilson might be beneath contempt in other ways, he did not have that fault."

The origin of the Graduate College controversy, which later ended with Woodrow Wilson leaving Princeton and becoming a candidate for Governor of New Jersey, will be described tomorrow.

An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX," writes Eva. "About a year ago last Winter, I met a young man whom I liked just as I like all pleasant people.

"He has called me on the 'phone every night since I met him. In fact, two weeks after I first met him we were keeping 'steady company.'

"I learned of other girls in his life. He told me about them, saying I was worth all of them, and he never knew what love was until he met me. I believed him.

"He was very thoughtful of me and took me everywhere. He wanted me to marry him immediately, but he did not have enough money. I pitied him, but I do not believe I loved him then. Gradually I began to realize what a fine, manly chap he was. I was too sure of him possibly.

"When Fall came he obtained a new position, which brought him in contact with all kinds of people—both men and women. His work absorbed him.

"I'd like to teach him a lesson—one that would wake him up, make him want me for his own, and perhaps knock some of the assurance from under him."

Well, Eva, if I am not mistaken, he interests you more now than in the days when you felt so sure of him and he was proposing regularly.

If you and he are so well suited to each other, so congenial, that you are for each other, you will find it out and become engaged in spite of yourselves.

Scarlett, with his back turned, chuckled suddenly. And Becky, without knowing why, felt a thrill of alarm pass from her fingers to the tips of her toes. But he merely replied: "None from Blanche, and if there are others they can't concern you . . ."

"No. Thank God I saw you burn the ones that mattered with my own eyes."

"To be sure you did," Scarlett answered but, irrelevantly, he chuckled again.

Final Bid 3 Spades. Played by West.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

On the first round of bidding [illegible] his partner not only that East has a Diamond bid, but also that he holds exactly normal support for Spades, since with less than normal support he would have [illegible] Spades on the first round, and with greater than normal support he would have [illegible] Spade [illegible] second round instead of showing his Diamonds. West [illegible] East's bidding, [illegible] three Spades not in denial of Diamonds, but because of the knowledge [illegible] to him that East holds three Spades, and sufficient strength to warrant a free bid of three Diamonds. With such support, game at Spades seemed a possibility or at least as having a better chance than game at Diamonds.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 2. For lack of a better lead, South [illegible] another Heart, anticipating a [illegible] by the Declarer and hoping possibly thereby to establish a trump trick in North's hand.

Trick 4. Having lost two tricks, Declarer can afford to lose but one more if he would go game on the hand. If he also [illegible] Diamonds are evenly [illegible] he need lose no trick in that suit [illegible] must lose a trump [illegible] fortunate enough to [illegible] the Queen [illegible]. If the Queen does not [illegible] he must depend upon the Diamond split for game. Declarer plays accordingly.

Trick 5. The Queen of trumps falling, Declarer's game is assured, even though he lose a Diamond trick.

Tricks 7 and 8. With game assured, Declarer plays his trumps to force discards on the remote chance of gaining a trick in Diamonds thereby.

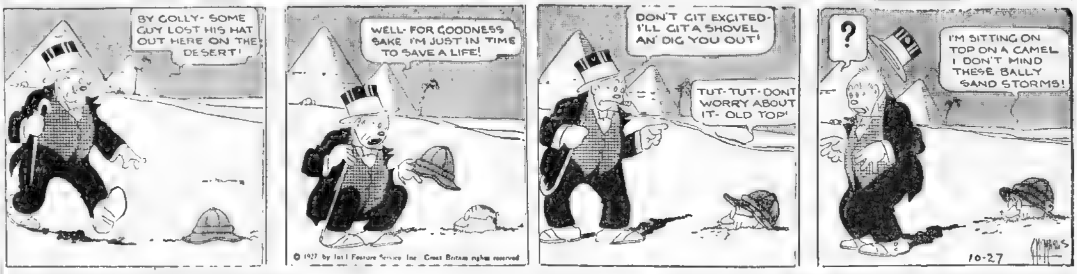

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Reception

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

For a one or two o'clock wedding to be held in the church when the bride is wearing the conventional [illegible] should the sleeves be long or would a sleeveless dress be correct?

(2) What would be correct for the bride at a six o'clock wedding?

(3) What would be correct attire for the groom for a one or two o'clock wedding? What would be correct for a six o'clock wedding?

(4) When there is a flower girl and a maid of honor, what would be the correct order of entering the church?

(5) What would be the correct order of leaving the church?

(6) At the reception to be held at the house after the ceremony who should form the receiving line and in what order should they stand?

(7) What is the correct way to address the two envelopes of the wedding invitations?

MADGE.

THIS is a matter of taste, but to my mind the bride is wise who chooses to wear long sleeves. Short sleeves do something unattractive to the harmony of the costume, I think. Nowadays the bride usually wears long sleeves.

(2) Long sleeves in the wedding dress are correct for a wedding at any time of day.

(3) Cutaway coat and dark striped trousers are correct for the groom for a day wedding, which means any wedding that takes place before six-thirty in the evening. Six-thirty is generally considered the dividing line between a day wedding and an evening wedding.

(4) The flower girl usually precedes the bride, walking after the maid of honor. The maid of honor, if there are bridesmaids, walks after them, and they follow the ushers.

(5) In the recessional the bride and groom walk first. The flower girl usually walks next (although she may walk first), the maid of honor follows, walking alone. Then come the bridesmaids, walking together two by two, and last the ushers, walking together two by two.

(6) There is no rigidly definite ruling for the receiving line. But one thing is definite—the mother of the bride stands first or next to her husband who may be first, receiving their guests, for they are the hosts of the occasion. The father of the bride either stands first in the line or mingles with the guests more informally. Then next to the bride's mother stands either the groom's father or the groom's mother. If the groom's father wishes to greet the guests more informally, he does not stand in the line. Next to the groom's mother is her son, and next to the groom is the bride (on his right, that is). Then comes the chief attendant of the bride, the maid of honor or the matron of honor. Then the bridesmaids. The ushers "assist" graciously, taking older people to the receiving line and showing the way to the refreshments, and generally making themselves useful. The best man stands within beckoning distance of the groom, so that he may "run errands" or do any other service for the groom.

(7) On the inner envelope, the one without the mucilaged flap, write the names of the recipients:

Mr. and Mrs. John Allington.

On the outer envelope the name and address are written with no abbreviations:

Mr. and Mrs. John Allington,
653 Garden street,
New York, New York.

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING.

ANCIENTLY there was a tribe of women of Scythia called Amazons, who not only considered men as inferior beings, not permitting them to even live among them, but who, extremely warlike by nature, were continually fighting with the [illegible] countries. Even in those days, however, that type of woman was extremely rare, and, in these days when civilization in most part of this world of ours considers man the natural protector and provider of and for the family, such a condition would seem well nigh impossible.

Not so, however. In the mountain village of Azerbaijan, in the Caucasus, there dwells a tribe of people where the position of man and woman is exactly reversed. The men remain home, sheltered and cared for, [illegible] the women go out and work. Work in the fields, work in the mines, [illegible] and govern the tribe. And in time of war it is the women who seize musket and cannon, and fight as fearlessly as any normal man.

While the women of the household [illegible] the men remain at home, often locked up indoors. Generally they are kept in luxurious idleness, but sometimes they are permitted to engage in petty household tasks.

And these modern Amazon women, far from being unattractive, sloppy drudges, are surprisingly beautiful. Tall and exquisitely proportioned, they are of a dark, vivacious Caucasian type, with masses of thick black hair. They are much esteemed by their neighbors for their honesty and character, as well as their capability and intelligence.

FRISBY DOES NOT TRY TO DODGE FILM ISSUE
Comes Out Firm for Better Pictures for the Masses

This is Number Three in Mister Frisby's series of specially posed Art Photos, for the home or den, showing women how to protect themselves.

BY MISTER FRISBY
Our Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—I have been asked to state whether, if elected Vice President, I will go in the movies.

My answer is, "Yes and No."

My first duty after election, of course, will be to clean up vice. After that is accomplished, I see no reason why I should not do all I can to lift the level of the movies.

In fact, I have sent out a questionnaire to the motion picture producers to find out just what they would pay me to give a certain something to their screen operas.

Pictures, I dare say, will give me an opportunity to get myself and my message before the people, regardless of creed or color.

I propose to play leading roles, if necessary, to gain attention of the masses. Just when the picture reaches the peak of interest I shall cut the eight-minute kiss in half and use the remainder of my allotted time for a four-minute speech over the vitaphone on some subject of topical interest.

I also plan an arrangement with exhibitors which will permit me to make personal appearances and sell my line of Home Remedies in the lobbies.

Watch your favorite theatre manager, and if he refuses to book a Frisby Super-Special call the police.

Lodges, churches, schools and clubs wishing to perform the following cantata should get in touch with our Aunt Bella, who, for a small fee, will be glad to quote royalty fees—

NELLIE
"Mother, mother, bar the door!
Papa's drunker than before;
See him stagger—smell his breath!
Mother, I am scared to death."
MOTHER
"Peace, my child—he shall not blight

My pillow with his head tonight;
He not tremble at his shout,
See! you'll put the candle out."

MOTHER
"Hurry, child, and bring the cake
Precious helped her mamma bake.
He's the biggest hog in town,
Mebbe cake will tame him down."
(Follows a great stamping on the porch, followed by the crash of a heavy fist against the door, while a roaring ensues.)
VOICE
"Slide the bolt, you lazy squaw,
Or I'll kick you in the jaw."

(Child grabs mother's left leg and shakes it so violently that the frosting from the cake spatters to the floor, while "Zooner," the dog, quickly erases it with his fur) tongue and looks up expectantly.)
MOTHER
"Papa, dear, for baby's sake
Come and gnaw the angel cake.
Promise us to quit the beer,
How we love you, daddy dear."

(There is a final surging against door, which creaks twice and falls inward with a dull, sickening—as the saying goes—thud; but above the drunkard's blasphemy rises the shrill crescendo of "Zooner," who has, unhappily, been caught beneath everything. Due to the fall the father develos the D. T.'s, the child has hysterics and the other, temporarily unbalanced from long domestic difficulties, grabs a heavy ax and describes a neat arc over her mate's pompadour. Alarmed by the whack, the milkman rises up in time to be blown to bits from an explosion caused by the contact of the candle's flame with the drunkard's volatile breath.)

D. T. (Razor) Doc.

A Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

In mere squeezing and picking to get rid of those ugly blackheads. Get a little Calonita powder from any drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and in two minutes every blackhead will be dissolved away entirely.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

ACCORDING to several ministers, women who promise to love, honor and obey are now reserving their rights when it comes to doing laundry work.

THEY'RE not going to give up a nice home just to go into some stranger's basement.

LOVE usually starts in the parlor and ends in the cellar.

OF course there are several dandy washing machines on the market, but the average girl would rather play some other musical instrument.

A WASHBOARD is a housewife's harp.

BUT the modern woman has no desire to render any knuckle solos on a tin accordion.

THIS is the reason that lots of men remain bachelors. They'd rather stay single and send their clothes to the laundry.

ONE girl says she's glad she's an old maid, because it gives her Monday to herself.

SHE broke her engagement to a football coach last year when he wanted her to become his scrub team.

SHE thought she should have a solitaire, and when she asked him to show her a diamond he took her up to the Yankee Stadium.

MARRIED women are beginning to realize that a divorce decree is the world's greatest labor saving device.

GIRLS who dream of romance nowadays always leave the washtubs out of their air castles.

THEY can't play bridge on an ironing board.

A NEW YORK man thought he was being wonderful to his wife when he put ballbearings in the clothes wringer.

HE figured it would make it easier for her to churn his shirts.

SHE didn't know much about laundry work. She looked in the cook book to see how long you had to boil sheets and pillow cases before they were done.

THE modern fiancee is always ready to give you an argument about washing. She goes around with a soap box on her shoulder.

LOVE may laugh at locksmiths, but it doesn't do much grinning over laundry bundles.

Corns
Lift Off—No Pain!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and callouses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm every time. Seems magic!

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store. Try it!

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Eczema On Neck Arms And Limbs Cuticura Healed

"My eczema started with an itching and burning, and then a red rash broke out on my neck, arms and limbs. It later formed sore eruptions that scaled over. My clothing aggravated it, and I could not sleep at night because it was worse when I got warm. The irritation caused me to scratch, and when I scratched the eruptions used to bleed. The trouble lasted four months.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I got relief after using it so purchased more, and in five weeks I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Oliver Hobbs, Hampton, N. H., Feb. 9, 1927.

THIS NURSE NOW HAS GOOD HEALTH

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Steward, 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. Pietsch, Box 297, Lancaster, Pa.

Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., from grateful women who say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hotels, Resorts and Travel

GREAT BEAUTY IN BRITAIN

More and more, seasoned travelers realize the wealth of beauty which lies in the rich meadows, in the spic-and-span, drowsy villages, in the age-old, decorous ducal estates, and in the bustling, pompous towns which dot the route from Liverpool to London.

That is why Liverpool has become such a Mecca for travelers bound for London. Leisurely and restfully travelling through this holiday picturesqueness of England's trim, quaint countryside, the traveler is provided with a fitting background for the gayer and more sophisticated life of London.

On the road to London from Liverpool, there are many strangely lovely things to see—for the whole greets the eye like a gayly-hued pageant whether you visit impressive Gothic structures, lacelike cathedral spires, grand old ruins, austere and proud, or merely busy cities teeming with industrial affairs.

CANADA RESORTS READY FOR WINTER CARNIVAL

Canada's Winter sports season, both east and west, promises to be the most brilliant in years. In the East it opens with the Christmas and New Year's festivities at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec.

This quaint fortified city of New France is a delightful setting for skiing on historical sites; bob-sledding on the old city walls; skatink on the Chateau Frontenac rink and tobogganing on Dufferin Terrace, overlooking the majestic Saint Lawrence River, and other diversions typical of Winter sports, including snowshoe tramps across the Plains of Abraham and to Montmorency Falls.

The Eastern Industrial Dog Derby is one of the outstanding events of the Winter season at Quebec and will be held the last week in February. The Winter season of the Canadian Rockies begins at Banff, Alberta, as soon as the weather warrants, for there the Winters are not too cold, yet with sufficient frost and snow to be ideal for sports.

The Banff Winter Carnival dates are February 4-11. The dog derby is run during that week from Calgary to Banff. This derby is to the West what the eastern one is to Quebec. A unique diversion in Banff is the bathing in hot sulphur pools in the open air, at the Cave and Basin, a vast pool owned by the government.

The sports at Revelstoke, a small town west of Banff, are held during the third week in February. The ski-jump here is one of the finest in the world, and ski-jumping is the outstanding event of the annual meet. Again and again world's records have been broken at Revelstoke.

LEADER OF LEGION PARTY BACK HOME

Mr. John Hancock, secretary of the McCready Tourist Agency has returned to Boston from a trip to Europe having accompanied the American Legion party under the guidance of the McCready Tourist Agency which left Boston on the Cunard Line steamer Scythia September 9.

The party attended the Legion convention in France and afterwards visited Switzerland, Germany, Italy and England returning from Europe on the Cunard Line steamer Caronia which landed in New York, Tuesday, October 25th.

MIAMI OFFERS WINTER HOMES

Miami, one of America's Winter resort wonder cities with its great hotels, magnificent apartment houses and beautiful homes is extending an invitation to the people of New England to spend their Winter with them. There is no other city in the United States which in the Winter offers a wider range of apartment houses, hotel and home accomodations.

Miami, probably is the only resort of its kind affording a tropical climate to the tourist. There are 136 hotels, more than 1200 apartment houses and hundreds of furnished cottages and homes for the tourist to choose from at a wider variation of prices which range for the season from $300 for a cottage to $10,000 for an estate, with a great majority averaging in the neighborhood of $1,000 for the season.

In the Spring, Miami is to entertain two of the largest conventions that are held in the United States—the Shriners and the Elks.

If you have any intention of going to Florida, and have in mind Miami, let the Boston American Advertiser Hotel and Travel Bureau furnish you with the latest copy of booklet "Miami by the Sea."

RENARD OPENS GROVE TONIGHT

Tonight is the night—the time 5:30 p. m. when the new Renard Cocoanut Grove opens its doors for the first time at No. 17 Piedmont street—one short block from the Statler Hotel, and will present the Boston public with a menu and entertainment which bids fair to attract lovers of good food and dancing for many a day to come.

The popular 15-piece Renard's Cocoanut Grove Victor Recording Orchestra will furnish the music nightly. Mickey Alpert, the boy Impressario with a collection of real trouble shakers and ten leading performers will have the principal place on the bill for the first week, which will be changed weekly.

You also will meet Fred Ruisseau who was proprietor of the Old Woodcock together with Jack Feigel, formerly of the Paul Whiteman Club of New York. Chief Louis of Paris, the maitre and Angelo Hippl, formerly of the Hotel Touraine, who is the maitre d'hotel.

Radio Talk to Tell of World Tour by Steamship

"Let's go round the world tonight," is to be the subject of an interesting travel talk to be broadcast by Dean H. Dickason from Station WBZ from 9 to 10 p. m. tomorrow evening. This lecture will describe the cruise of the Canadian Pacific "Empress of Australia," leaving New York December 2, 1927, and will be educational as well as entertaining.

Mr. Dickason has made six trips around the world in the past six years and this year is to be the official lecturer on the annual World Cruise of the "Empress of Australia."

ful Minotaur, half man, half bull. You shudder.

In Vienna, last Tuesday, you might have seen a first-class carriage on Europe's crack express train, delivering at the station eleven big anthropoid apes, called by evolutionists our distant cousins.

These poor creatures, traveling as first-class passengers from Africa, across the Mediterranean and on to Vienna, will be used by Dr. Voronoff to restore youth to aged Viennese gentlemen.

Those higher "primates" chimpanzees or gorillas, are not exactly Greek youths and maidens. But they deserve pity, sacrificed to keep worthless old men alive and foolish.

Hear about the Zarathustra colony, visited by an unfortunate Massachusetts woman, Mrs. Lord, in search of "new ideas" and murdered in Nice.

A goat path leads to the colony, on top of a high mountain near the Mediterranean. Two hours' climbing leads you to a community of sixty men, women and children, all sunning themselves on the mountain top, wearing no clothing. Dr. Goldberg, German, who has been in prison occasionally, is head of the colony. For every man there are two women, no marriage, no names for the children except "son" and "daughter."

The unfortunate murdered woman thought she saw something new when she climbed that goat path. She did not.

Darwin saw just such colonies in Patagonia, but the ladies put on no clothing. And you might have seen similar colonies anywhere on earth, especially on the plateaus of Asia, had you been here five hundred thousand years ago.

As for Zarathustra, great man and great thinker, he wouldn't thank you for giving his name to the nude colony.

LEE, HIGGINSON OFFER $30,000,000 NEW ISSUE

Lee, Higginson & Company are offering at 98 and interest to yield over 5⅛ per cent, a new issue of $30,000,000 Shell Pipe Line Corporation 25-year 5 per cent, sinking fund gold debentures, due Nov. 1, 1952. Proceeds from the sale of these bonds, which are unconditionally guaranteed as to principal, interest and sinking fund by the Shell Union Oil Corporation, will be used for construction of additions and expansions to and increasing the capacity of the pipe line system of the Shell Pipe Line Corporation and for other corporate purposes.

The Shell Pipe Line Corporation, formerly the Ozark Pipe Line Corporation, is the oil pipe line owning and operating subsidiary of the Shell Union Oil Corporation in the Middle West, its pipe line system extending through the length of the midcontinent field northward to the refineries of the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, in Kansas, at East St. Louis, Ill., on the Mississippi River, and at East Chicago, Indiana, on Lake Michigan.

Shell Union Oil Corporation, through it subsidiaries, is one of the largest producing, refining and marketing companies in the oil industry in this country. Shell Union owns the entire capital stock of Shell Pipe Line, except directors' qulifying shares.

BIG FUR SALE
AT NORTHERN LOAN CO.
$25, $35, $45, UP

We are challenging any one, large or small, to give you better retail value in brand new 1928 styles in ladies' fur coats than we are giving. We have on hand at present hundreds of the most fashionable garments you can think of. The same kind you are paying hundreds elsewhere for. Our coats are for young, middle aged and elderly women. Our prices upset every standard of value past or present. Here are the real facts. We specialize in loaning money to furriers and the general public during their dull season for a limited time. If not redeemed in order to dispose of them, the law compells us to advertise them legally and sell them to the public regardless of their original cost or value. Come down and see them for yourself. No obligation whatsoever. A small deposit will hold any coat you may select. Mail orders filled subject to examination. State size and shade you want.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Boston's Y. W. C. A.

From Two Rooms to a Hotel

The community centre and hotel to be erected at Clarendon and Stuart Streets, the cornerstone of which is laid today, will be the most up-to-date Young Women's Christian Association building in the United States.

In addition to recreational and club rooms, coffee room, swimming pool, assembly hall, chapel, bowling alleys, and public baths and dressing rooms, the ninth to the thirteenth floors of the building will be equipped as a hotel, each floor with 36 guest rooms.

How many of those who have come to take the Y. W. C. A. for granted know that the FIRST organization of that name was founded here in Boston, 61 years ago? How many know the story of Lucretia Boyd, the city missionary, whose zealous interest in the Young Girl from the Country inspired certain of the Christian women of Boston to meet at the home of Mrs. Henry F. Durant, in Mt. Vernon Street, adopt a constitution under the name which now is in universal use and issue letters to the rural pastors of New England soliciting their co-operation.

They "extended their sympathy and protection to young working women coming as strangers to the city and promised to aid them in obtaining suitable boarding places and employment."

The first home of the association was in Chauncy Street, in two rooms of the Congregational Building. Seven months later, with $28,000 raised by public subscription, the five-story dwelling house at Nos. 25-27 Beach Street was purchased, to be given up in 1874 for a new home in Warrenton Street. The building in Berkeley Street, at Appleton Street, now known as the "residence," was taken over in 1908.

If any young girl comes unacquainted and unknown to Boston nowadays it is because she does not know of the Y. W. C. A. Its membership is open to any girl or woman—regardless of race or creed—who is in sympathy with the Association purpose. Girls from 12 to 18 years of age are taken into the Girl Reserves. For older girls there is a health education department, a general education department, a school of domestic science, an athletic association, and a business girls' department. There is dancing, too—we are not sure Lucretia Boyd would approve of that—and overlooking the ocean, on the bluffs at Vineyard Haven, Camp Winnecunnet.

The history of this typically Boston movement has been one of increase, expansion and development. May it continue to grow and prosper, worthy always of the thirty "Christian women of Boston" who watched and prayed over the Chauncy Street infant of the Year 1866.

Our Navy

Keeping Open House, on NAVY DAY

His Britannic Majesty's Ship Capetown, calling at the Port of New Bedford, in five days received 27,761 visitors.

On Saturday last, 11,575 men, women and children walked over the gangplank of the British visitor.

Many American citizens of New Bedford were born under the British flag. They are none the less good Americans because, during a memorable five-day period, they did everything in their power to give their kin from overseas a glorious welcome.

In the United States, today is Navy Day. From 8 o'clock this morning until sundown the Navy Yards of Portsmouth and Boston and the Naval Ammunition Depot at Hingham will be keeping open house.

The purpose of Navy Day is to give the public a better knowledge of conditions, to promote more intimate and cordial relations between the citizen and the Navy he helps to support, and to increase the efficiency of the Navy itself through the necessity of meeting this public inspection.

Ours is not a Royal Navy, like those of Italy and Great Britain, nor yet an Imperial Navy, as Japan's is and Germany's was. It belongs to no party, no person, no administration, but to the PEOPLE of the United States. If anything goes wrong with it, therefore, the ultimate fault must be laid at the door of its owners, because of their lack of interest.

No complaint of that description has ever yet been laid against the New Englander, whose love for the Navy is quite as jealous as that of the OLD Englander.

This was the land of Esek Hopkins, of Abraham Whipple, the O'Briens of Machias, Preble, Decatur, Perkins, Clark, Dewey, Chandler, Hale, John D. Long, Moody and Yon L. Meyer.

There may still be time to enjoy some of the Navy Yard program, visit "Old Ironsides," meet officers and men and see the fire boats, the Army and Navy planes and the diving exhibition.

Accept the Navy's invitation; let it be impressed today upon officers and men that whatever of somnolence there may be in other parts of the land New England realizes the importance of the building up of a merchant marine and knows equally well the import of a Navy adequate for its protection. Let there be no lagging here, nor the APPEARANCE of lagging, in popular regard for the welfare of OUR Navy.

Poor Papa

Faces Salary for Mamma

In several of the States this Fall another jolt is being cocked up for poor papa, the old bird who has become so famous in song and story. The particular shock for him this time is a movement for salaries for housewives.

The old man has one grim satisfaction these days, and that is that his pay envelope will go only so far. By the time the various agencies get through with it there is, in most cases, no salary left for himself.

However, chivalry is not quite dead, and poor papa may, in most cases, prefer to pay mamma her salary and let the others walk.

LOOKING FORWARD IN SCIENCE WORLD

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Nineteenth Century was the most wonderful century regarded from the point of view of invention.

We had safety matches, locomotives, the cable, the telephone, the typewriter and all sorts of other things.

But the Twentieth Century is expected to be greater. Its scientists are peering forward into the future with eager eyes. Much of the work that goes on quietly and without advertisement is done by the bespectacled and towsled-haired scientists who get very little money for their work.

I inquired of a radio expert about the future of radio. As nearly as I can find out, important things are just on the verge of happening.

A driverless car can be run by radio from a car that follows it.

But the radio beam which sends power by radio in a direct line has not yet been perfected. At present it spreads in all directions. When the beam shall have been perfected it will accomplish wonderful things.

They are telephoning by radio and sending photographs by radio, but the television still lingers. It is not yet a practical success.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, of the Pasadena Institute of Technology, who discovered the cosmic ray, asserts that this ray will penetrate 120 feet of water or 11 feet of earth, but that there is no means of utilising its force for health and happiness. They are continually making experiments with the ray to learn more about it and its possible adaptability.

The X-ray and other rays emitted by certain radioactive substances have been utilized for the benefit of humanity.

The ultra-violet ray is pronounced by scientists throughout the world as perhaps the greatest of modern curative agencies.

Then there is the rainbow ray, discovered by Raymond R. Machlett. It is said this ray will penetrate haze and fog, but it has not yet been proved practicable.

Out of present activities of obscure scientists will doubtless come important inventions in the future.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. ALLENE has been reading about the girls employed in one of the government offices in Washington. They have been given permission to smoke in the offices and Mrs. Allene thinks it will have a terrible result.

"It will make them all seem as common," she grieves, "and men will lose their respect for them. It seems unbelievable that Uncle Sam would sanction such a thing."

Yes, I suppose it will make them appeal common. But that doesn't seem such a tragic thing to me. Indeed, it's probably the very best thing that could possibly happen and will go a long way toward offsetting the foolishness and waste of cigarette smoking.

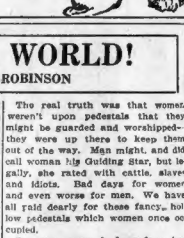

WOMEN ARE COMMON — BY THAT I DON'T MEAN CHEAP—AND THE SOONER WE REALIZE AND ACCEPT THAT FACT THE BETTER FOR THE WHOLE HUMAN RACE.

An insulting statement? Not at all. There's nothing more valuable or sacred than good, hard-working Commonsense. The earth is common—and yet it is the birthplace of all treasures and mysteries. The male sex is common—as any husband knows to his bitterness—yet out of that sweating, lusting, struggling, dreaming commonness of men have come poets and heroes and inventors.

Nature meant women to share man's commonness. She made them both out of the same clay and fired them with the same desires. She intended them to mate and work and fight and dream together. They were as brave as men originally, as intelligent and as healthy. They could endure as much. Womanhood was no handicap to the primitive female. It should be no handicap to the modern female. But the greed and jealousy of men and the laziness of women themselves threw women out of the running. It trapped them in harems and isolated them on pedestals. It looked pretty and we made up a lot of high falutin' poetry about women being purer and more delicate and sensitive than men, and needing protection. But it wasn't pretty! It was the funk!

The real truth was that women weren't upon pedestals that they might be guarded and worshipped—they were up there to keep them out of the way. Man might, and did call woman his Guiding Star, but legally, she rated with cattle, slaves and idiots. Bad days for women and even worse for men. We have all paid dearly for these fancy, hollow pedestals which women once occupied.

But now woman is down from her pedestal for good and has landed square on the earth with men. She has shorn the curls from her ears and the flounces from her knees—and clamped a fag to her ruby but rambunctious lips. As a Guiding Star she's a flop, but as a Partner and a Human Being she is about to become the finest phenomenon which the world has ever seen. For she has come into her own at last—into that deep, fruitful Commonness which she should share with the soil and her mate and God. As for man's respect—he isn't going to lose it, my dear, for she never really had it. But she'll begin to gain it at last.

And if that silly little cigarette has hastened that day, more power to it!

DRAWING A GREAT HELP IN STUDY

By Garrett P. Servis,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

IT is an admirable plan that has been adopted in the Mexican public schools of permitting and encouraging the children to draw illustrations of the subjects of their study, the drawing being done without special instruction, each child using his or her own imagination to conceive and execute the picture. The teacher simply watches the work and encourages any exhibition of individual talent.

It is a bold breaking away from conventional methods, and the results are reported to the Ministry of Public Education as being excellent. They are noted in the homes of the pupils, where the children spontaneously design and decorate toys and other articles. The teachers observe that this freedom of the imagination reacts upon the scholarship of the pupils, serving to fix their attention more closely upon their school work, and so to impress their lessons more deeply in their minds.

This is a truly practical step in psychology, worth more than a thousand of the usual "laboratory" experiments. The reason for taking it is evident, to any one who recalls his own schooldays.

How many can remember making crude pictures on the margins and fly leaves of their school books, and being rebuked, or even punished, for "desecration" and "idleness" by teachers who had no perception of the fact that the pupil was giving expression to ideas awakened by his studies, and thus, in a stumbling way, was advancing his own education.

No spontaneous or original exercise of the mind should be considered alien in a schoolroom. That is the place of all places where invention should be free. One of the first manifestations of the awakening of intellectual curiosity is the tendency to draw pictures.

A proof is seen on the pictured walls of prehistoric caverns, the earliest homes of men, where humanity taught itself its first lessons and began its education. Almost every child experiences this desire as soon as his or her mind begins to develop. But how often is it encouraged, either at home or in school?

The consequence is that most of us never learn to draw, though, as this Mexican experiment proves, such learning requires no effort or even any teaching if it is allowed to evolve freely. The children become their own critics. Excellence is quickly recognised by them, and the spirit of emulation develops the powers of the more backward.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THE sun-dials in old gardens, how quaint they are, how dear; how brave the record which they keep, where skies are always clear! No clouds seem worth recording upon the sun-dial's face, however dark the tempest's lower, their fury leaves no trace. And so with those blest natures, so glad so free from doubt, that never count the coming hours until the sun shines out. Oh! care may cross their pathway and pain may dog their trail, and they may sometimes join the ranks of those who try, yet fail; but ah! how soon forgotten their troubles, every one; the only memories they keep are those of joy and sun. Like sun-dials in old gardens, those happy ones we know who treasure all the shining hours and let the storm clouds go.
